ACTOR JACQUELINE STOPPED FROM LEAVING THE COUNTRY

Officials stop Jacqueline Fernandez at Mumbai airport over a look-out notice on a ₹200-crore money laundering case

RECIPIENT OF CONMAN'S EXPENSIVE GIFTS?

The Bollywood actor was named in an ED chargesheet filed on Saturday against smooth-talking conman Sukesh Chandrasekhar, who has a long record of duping the rich. The ED said the 32-year-old sent Jacqueline lavish gifts worth ₹10 crore, including a ₹52-lakh horse and a Persian cat valued at ₹9 lakh. On Sunday, Jacqueline was to fly to Dubai for a show

NORA MENTIONED IN CHARGESHEET TOO

- The ED has charged Sukesh, a Bengaluru native, as well as his wife, actor Leena Maria Paul, for extorting ₹200 crore from a businessman's wife while he was lodged in Delhi's Tihar jail
- Sukesh also sent gifts to actor Nora Fatehi. Recently, pictures of Sukesh and Jacqueline being casually intimate went viral online

New clusters erupt near B'luru, C'magaluru dist

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru/Chikkamagaluru

AMID rising scare over the Omicron variant of SARS-CoV-2 virus, a big cluster with 70 positive cases emerged at the Jawahar Navodaya Residential School in Seegodu near Balehonnur in Chikkamagaluru district, even as 12 more positive cases were detected in two existing clusters at educational institutions near Anekal and Whitefield on the outskirts of Bengaluru. A small cluster of three cases was reported at a pharmaceutical manufacturing factory in Bommasandra Industrial Area in Bengaluru.

At the school in Seegodu, three students and four staffers tested positive on Friday. Alarmed district health officials on Saturday took swab samples of 418 students and staff, which showed 40 as positive. Again on Sunday, when corona tests continued, another 30 students were positive, taking the total to 70. District health officials said that all of them are asymptomatic and none of them have had a travel history. All those staying at the school have been quarantined, health and nursing staff pressed into service and the school has been sealed.

On Bengaluru outskirts, 10 staff members and students of two educational institutions, one near Anekal and the other near Whitefield that were identified as clusters on November 25 and 26, tested positive on Sunday. Three others were positive during random tests at a pharmaceutical factory in Bommasandra Industrial Area, which is now designated a cluster.

Seven, including six students and a cook, tested positive on Sunday at Spurthy Nursing College in Marsur near Anekal. The college was already declared a cluster on November 26 when 12 had tested positive. The six students are women aged between 17 and 22. P3

CENTRAL AGENCIES REFUSE TO GIVE INFO TO BBMP ON GENOME SEQUENCE TESTS

Bengaluru: The State Government and BBMP are waiting with bated breath for the results of the genome sequencing tests conducted on some primary contacts of the first two cases with Omicron. Encounter goes horribly wrong in Nagaland, 15 civilians killed

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati

A blundered ambush by security forces on Saturday evening and its fallout led to the killing of 15 civilians in Nagaland's Mon district, forcing the state government and the Army to order independent probes.

Saturday's civilian toll of 13 climbed after two others were killed when a mob of over 1,000 people attacked an Assam Rifles camp in Mon town, torching its canteen, gate etc. Several apex tribal organisations decided to withdraw from the state's ongoing Hornbill festival in protest.

Official sources said four of the six civilians injured during Saturday's violence were admitted to a hospital in Mon while the remaining two were taken to Assam Medical College and Hospital in Dibrugarh. Local tribal organisations claimed 11 persons were injured and two were reported missing.

Given the volatile situation and the likely breach of public peace and tranquility, the state government suspended mobile internet/data service/bulk SMS in the entire Mon district. The district administration prohibited the gathering of more than five persons at a time in public under Section 144 of the CrPC.

> Deepest condolences to the families of those who have lost their lives. A high-level SIT constituted by the state govt will thoroughly probe this incident to ensure justice to the bereaved families
>
> Amit Shah, Union Home Minister

Chief Minister Neiphiu Rio, who was in Delhi, rushed to Nagaland. Later in the evening, he chaired a meeting of his cabinet. He will visit Mon on Monday to attend the funeral.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi tweeted, "This is heart wrenching. GOI must give a real reply. What exactly is the home ministry doing when neither civilians nor security personnel are safe in our own land?"

In what looks like a total intelligence failure, defence personnel had ambushed eight daily wagers at Oting after mistaking them as militants. The victims were returning home in a pick-up truck from a coal mine on Saturday around 5 pm. Six of the civilians were killed and two others injured, a senior district official said requesting anonymity.

When locals heard the sound of gunshots, they rushed to the area, leading to a retaliatory attack in which seven more civilians were killed. An Army jawan, who was grievously injured, succumbed to his injuries. The locals also set ablaze vehicles of defence personnel.

On Sunday morning, Nagaland's Dimapur-based 3 Corps issued a statement stating that a specific operation was planned to be conducted in the area of Tiru in Mon based on credible intelligence of the likely movement of insurgents. "The cause of the unfortunate loss of lives is being investigated at the highest level," it said, adding members of the security forces, too, suffered severe injuries.

When pictures and videos of the slain civilians went viral on social media, it triggered a public outrage. People registered their protests out on the streets in some parts of the state. In commercial hub Dimapur, hundreds of them congregated outside the district magistrate's office and staged a protest.

The Naga Students' Federation unfurled its flag at half-mast in protest against the killings. Insurgent group NSCN-IM, the key player in the Naga peace talks, described it as "black day" for the Nagas. "It is learned the killing was the work of the trigger-happy 21st Para Commandos/Assam Rifles," the outfit said in a statement. P9

K'taka stands last in South in poverty index: Report

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

THE quality of life in Karnataka has improved significantly in the last five years as more people now have better access to cooking fuel, sanitation, drinking water and electricity. But in some other parameters, including nutrition and maternal health, Karnataka is behind all other southern states.

While Karnataka has done much better than many states in North India and has only slightly underperformed in comparison with its Southern neighbours, the development within the state has not reached all parts. The National Multidimensional Poverty Index, released by the NITI Aayog recently, points to an increased gap between districts in the south and Kalyana Karnataka and Kittur Karnataka regions. Economists and experts pointed out that the anomaly is because of the policy decisions and it is man-made. Underdeveloped regions need more investment and focus, they added.

Though Karnataka has improved in certain criteria over the last five years, it stands in fourth place among five Southern states. P4

Kidwai doesn't have crucial PET-CT scanner to detect cancer

Director says the hospital is using MRI, ultrasound and CT scans for now

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

BENGALURU, touted as an international hub of medical tourism, may have the best facilities and treatment for the rich but lacks basic testing equipment for life threatening diseases like cancer in its lone specialty government hospital.

In a shocking discovery, TNIE has learnt that Karnataka's only government institute of cancer, Kidwai Memorial Institute of Oncology, has been treating cancer patients from across the state and outside, without the basic PET-CT scan machine, which is a must for early detection, line and response to cancer treatment.

A Positron Emission Tomography (PET) scan is an imaging test that helps reveal the metabolic or biochemical function of tissues and organs. It uses a radioactive drug (tracer) to show both normal and abnormal metabolic activity. "PET-CT scan gives crucial functional and structural information about any abnormality in the body. The response to the treatment can be seen in 48 hours, which other imaging modalities like MRI cannot give. PET-CT scans have changed the diagnosis and management of treatment of not only cancer but other life-threatening illnesses like cardiac conditions (viability), prolonged, unknown fever, dementia etc by 50 per cent," said Dr RV Parameswaran, consultant, Nuclear Medicine, Manipal Hospital, Old Airport Road. "In an oncology setup, it's paramount to have a PET-CT scanner. By using it judiciously, we can give the best treatment to patients."

Dr Ramachandra, Director, Kidwai, agreed that the institute does not have a PET-CT scanner and has been using other imaging modalities like Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), ultrasound and Computed Tomography (CT) scans to detect and treat cancer. "We are in the process of acquiring a PET-CT scanner soon on a public-private partnership model. The proposal has been cleared by the State Level Single Window Clearance Committee (SLSWCC) and expression of interest would be drawn soon," he said.

He added that work on the new building, which would also house the imaging, diagnostic and nuclear medicine centre has recently been inaugurated by Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai. "Civil work in the new building is ready. It was delayed due to the pandemic. We are initiating the tendering process soon and hopefully, we should get the PET-CT scanner in a couple of months," added the director. "Around 30 to 40 per cent of patients come to the hospital when in stage three and four of cancer. Early detection is the key to cancer treatment; 95 per cent of patients are cured if cancer is detected early," added Dr Ramachandra.

A PET-CT scan ranges between Rs 25,000 and Rs 40,000 in private hospitals. In the absence of the scanner at Kidwai, many patients who come to the government hospital, find it impossible to afford the test. Three multinational giants -- GE Healthcare, Siemens Medical Devices and Philips -- manufacture PET-CT imaging machines and the cost of the scanner is in the Rs 7-8 crore range.

Kidwai Institute sees around 50 cancer patients on a daily basis in the state. With only one doctor in the nuclear medicine section, it is a huge challenge to cater to desperate patients, who see Kidwai as the last ray of hope amid gnawing malignancy.

The ₹8,172-cr Bengaluru-Mysuru Expressway project would convert the present 4-lane highway into a 6-lane thoroughfare

B'LURU-MYSURU EXPRESSWAY WILL BE READY IN OCT '22: NHAI

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE ambitious 117.3-km 10-lane Bengaluru-Mysuru Expressway, which is being readied to reduce travel time between the two cities to 90 minutes, from the present three hours, is on track to meet its revised deadline of October 2022, as specified by Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari.

The first phase from Bengaluru to Nidaghatta in Mandya district will be ready by May next year, while the second phase from Nidaghatta to Mysuru will be in place in September, said National Highways Authority of India officials.

The Rs 8,172-crore project intends to convert the present four-lane highway into a six-lane, along with four service lanes and paved shoulders for two-wheelers and autorickshaws on both sides of the road. Vehicles can zip past at 100 kmph when it is ready.

A top NHAI official told TNIE that 83% work was completed in Phase-I that runs to 56.2 km, while 78% had been completed in Phase-II that runs to 61.1 km. However, the two Covid waves and a shortage of manpower and material have pushed deadlines repeatedly in the last two years. Land acquisition issues had also dogged it for many years, but that is no longer an issue, the official said.

Giving a breakup of the progress, he stated that an elevated highway was being built from RR Medical College to Christ University in the Bengaluru-Nidaghatta section, with four bridges. "Around 85% of the elevated section is completed and three bridges are ready, while the fourth was being readied," he said. For the stretch between Nidaghatta to Mysuru, an elevated highway was coming up for 3.38 km at Maddur, with a portion running to 275 metres in Srirangapatna. "The foundation and casting work have been completed. Erection of segment and wings are in progress, and we can say that 78% of the overall work is complete," he explained.

Let in only fully vaxxed, BBMP to malls, cinemas

Bengaluru: Following two cases of the Omicron variant of Covid-19, BBMP on Sunday issued an order directing managements of malls, shopping complexes, theatres and cinema halls to give entry to only those with both doses of the Covid vaccine. "Owners or managers shall ensure mask, social distancing and other Covid-appropriate behaviour is maintained at all times by the staff and customers. They shall assign necessary staff for screening and verification of vaccination certificate of staff and all customers and ensure only the fully vaccinated are allowed to enter the premises," the order read. BBMP marshals and health officials will visit establishments for checks frequently.

MCC students, parents protest, exams put off

Bengaluru: Hundreds of students of Mount Carmel College and their parents staged a protest in front of its premises in Vasanthnagar, demanding that the exams scheduled to begin on December 6 be postponed. The protest follows a panic situation which had engulfed the college late last week, after news of students testing positive for Covid on campus had been circulated. This issue was, however, dismissed as rumours by the college principal on Saturday. Meanwhile, a police officer said the students and their parents were shouting slogans against the management. Finally, after the latter announced its decision to postpone the exams, the protesters left.

Residents come together after complaints go unanswered

DONNA EVA @ Bengaluru

AFTER multiple complaints went unanswered, homeowners have gathered to spread awareness on anomalies committed by builders and how to file complaints against them.

The Home Buyers Awareness Group was started by a handful of home buyers who were frustrated trying to air their grievances regarding issues in their societies. A top member of the group, who requested anonymity, owns an apartment in Attibele. She was trying to bring attention to various issues around her society, which also included the association not being properly registered and maintenance fees being collected illegally from residents. She said the builders were mortgaging common areas, though they weren't supposed to after handing them over to the society's resident welfare association.

After she filed complaints, the association illegally cut off power and water to her apartment. "They installed a valve, cutting off water to my apartment since 2018," she said. Her family had to move out of the flat and into a rented facility.

When she approached the police to file a complaint against the association, the police told her to pay her maintenance fees, she said. "They did not try to understand the situation that legally the association cannot disconnect essential services even if maintenance fees are not paid," she added.

Several other homeowners were facing similar problems around Bengaluru. Another homeowner, Subroto Chakraborty, had been fighting against multiple anomalies that both his society's builders and association were part of. He alleged that the builders had put many apartment residents at risk by failing to obtain clearance from the Fire Department and forging the documents. No current employees from the builders could be reached. Lt Gen Matthew Mammen, former CMO of one of the builders who had been mentioned in the complaint filed by Chakraborty, said he was unaware of these issues.

Upset, home buyers serve memorandum to K-RERA

Fed up with a lack of response, home buyers gathered at the K-RERA offices on Saturday and handed over a memorandum, highlighting problems. Nearly 30 people from at least 10 projects had gathered to air grievances -- which ranged from almost decade-old incomplete projects, failure of builders to account for funds, and a lack of action taken on the part of the authorities, among countless illegalities by the builders. All problems led to the home buyers facing loss, due to EMIs and loans being availed for properties. Dhananjaya Padmanabhachar, member of the forum, told The New Indian Express: "This is the fifth memorandum we are submitting. Most recently, we came here two weeks ago and tried to submit a memorandum, but couldn't reach anyone from the committee, our grievances were not heard and no action has been taken." Padmanabhachar, as well as other buyers, had faced a major loss due to builders dragging their feet with construction, though their project was to be completed in 2016. Several other home buyers had faced similar issues. Meanwhile, the buyers met K-RERA Secretary K Nagendraprasad, who assured that a meeting would be held every month with them to make sure their concerns and cases would be heard. ENS

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

06th December: A strange Moon has an impact on the coming few days. Traditionally, this is a time when energy is low. It follows that we can all take some time off and postpone important initiatives until later. However, tradition also holds that, within a few days of the New Moon, we enter a perfect moment for setting up new enterprises and launching new projects. You have been warned!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
You're in for a hardworking and perhaps confusing week. Yet, because the Moon finishes the week aligned with a mysterious angle of your horoscope, you must make sure that everything is open and above board. This shouldn't be too difficult, given that your mood is generally optimistic, thanks to that happy trio, Mercury, Venus and Mars.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Once again, it's money which preoccupies you, although it's unlikely that you'll be committing yourself to extra spending unless domestic responsibilities are now urgent. Even then you should put luxuries higher than necessities. You will be in the planning stage at work and you must gather as much information as you can.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Some of you are hoping for a hassle-free week. One thing to remember, though, is that this is not an auspicious time for finalising decisions or coming to lasting agreements. You've got all the best ideas. In fact you're brilliant. Yet for some strange reason even your brightest plans seem to come unstuck.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You're still on the warpath. And why not? Why should you always allow other people to walk all over you? However, you should take notice of the old maxim that a good general only fights battles he knows he - or she - can win. And before you can even stake out your ground, you must finalise your financial plans.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
What is going on? Well, astrologically speaking, you're being disturbed by deep anger and half-acknowledged fears. Keep such imaginings in perspective and don't let them interfere with what could be a highly successful period. Don't allow the fact that life is moving in your favour to distract you from your deeper purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Push professional affairs forward for all you are worth. If career matters are not your concern then focus on any area of public service which will boost your reputation and enhance the quality of your life. But what is best about the current period is the ease with which you can abandon a long-term responsibility.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You have two choices as far as your current strategy is concerned. Either you must focus on the minutiae of domestic and professional struggles, or you may step back from questions of detail and make your principles and beliefs your sole guide. The major factor, though, is the sheer number of secrets people around you are keeping.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
If anything, financial questions have become more complex in recent weeks. Take comfort from the fact that, in spite of what people may say, there is no need to make a rush decision. In addition, I can say that your long-term interests are being supported. In any case, the Moon is giving you 110 per cent approval.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
The Moon always tends to make your reactions over-emotional, but you may feel you have good cause to be petulant. However, contrary to what you imagine, other people are not having it all their own way. And just because partners are wrong that doesn't mean that you are always right. The air will clear in a couple of days.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
There doesn't seem to be any let-up from pressures at work or from the burden imposed by domestic chores, and neither should there be as long as sober Saturn is skulking in discreet reaches of your solar chart. However, you must realise that this is a helpful phase, one in which you are learning to cope with new experiences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You are justly proud of your creative and highly individual approach to life, even though other people are often irritated by your unpredictability. Whatever they think, this is the time to pursue your unique ambitions without fear or favour. Financially it now seems certain that your original choice was the correct one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
It's a matter of swings and roundabouts: on the one hand, domestic improvements are proceeding without a hitch and, on the other, you may have to face a temporary disappointment as agreements and decisions are delayed. This is a day to broaden your horizons, looking far afield for the inspiration which is so essential to your well-being.

Genome reports bound in red tape, officials out of loop

Lab to send results to central agencies; Palike waits to take action; transfers making it difficult for officials to understand technical details

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

The Karnataka government and BBMP are waiting with bated breath for the results of the genome sequencing tests conducted on some primary contacts of the first two cases with the Omicron variant of SARS-CoV-2 virus. A tussle has erupted, with Central agencies not giving information to act quickly.

The test results of the five primary and secondary contacts of the 46-year-old doctor who tested positive for the Omicron variant, were to be announced on Saturday or Sunday. The samples of the doctor's wife and two children were sent for genome sequencing. All the samples were sent by BBMP and health department officials to the National Centre for Biological Sciences (NCBS) for genome sequencing.

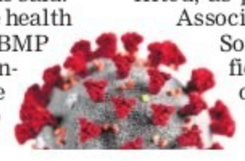
However, as NCBS is under the Central government, as per protocol, the reports are to be uploaded on the portal and shared with the Central health ministry first. Officials of the state health department and BBMP are desperately requesting that the test results be given to them early, so they can act immediately, rather than wait for another day, and get it from the Centre in the form of an official announcement.

The genome sequencing reports are likely to be announced on Monday, after NCBS shares the results with the Central government, after which the Ministry of Health will announce the results.

"We agree to the protocols to be followed by the lab. But the Central government's insistence on protocols to be followed is now becoming a source of worry for us. We are politely asking the lab to share the reports with us, but they are not obliging," a source in the BBMP, who is privy to the procedures, told TNIE.

"Central government norms have to be followed. Earlier, when Covid-19 cases were rising at a rapid pace, and the results were uploaded on the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) portal, they were shared with us beforehand so that ground preparations could be scaled up quickly. The cordial methodology had helped in creating a parallel management mechanism. In the same way, as cases with the Omicron variant are now rising in other parts of the country and there are still no restrictions on domestic travel, we need to take more precautions," he said.

The worries of the health department and BBMP officials are not unfounded as the number of Covid-19 clusters in Karnataka as well as in Bengaluru have now risen to 75, with Bommanahalli zone having a majority of them. It is the same zone where the first Omicron positive case was reported in the country, that of the 46-year-old doctor. It is also the zone where sealing of containment zones was resumed after it was lifted, as per Indian Medical Association guidelines.



Some of the BBMP officials feel the change of hand in the management of Covid-19 war rooms, change in officials coordinating between the health department and BBMP, is also leading to poor interaction and communication with the labs.

"Since so many transfers have happened in quick succession, officials have not been able to handle all the wings and understand the finer technical details, or build a good rapport with their counterparts in other departments coming under the central and state governments, to get reports beforehand. The government and politicians should understood all this before announcing multiple transfers. This is also one of the reasons why the state government is unable to get the reports faster," said a source.

More test positive in B'luru clusters

"THOSE who tested positive on Sunday are all primary contacts of Covid patients whose test results returned tested positive on November 26. They were in isolation at the same location. While their test results were negative earlier, the second round done on the seventh day showed them to be positive," an official from the Bengaluru Urban administration said.

Meanwhile, five staffers of a private boarding school, The International School Bangalore (TISB) near Whitefield, tested positive on Sunday. On November 25, 33 students and one staffer were positive. On Sunday, the test results of four men and a woman, all aged between 24 and 28 years, returned positive. They were in quarantine after the outbreak on the campus.

The staffers who tested positive include a counsellor and security guards, a Bengaluru district administration official said.

Three men tested positive at the pharmaceutical manufacturing factory in Bommasandra Industrial Area, where random testing of the housekeeping staff was conducted on Saturday. They were shifted to a Covid Care Centre. The BBMP staff had randomly tested 255 staff.

The factory has not been closed, but the building will be sanitised. Tests will continue as the factory works in shifts, a BBMP official said.

35 contacts of first Omicron patient test negative

The BBMP has traced 35 people who were part of a conference attended by the first Omicron patient in the country, and their test results are negative. "The 35 include the hotel staff, attendees such as doctors and technical staffers," an officer said.

No of containment zones 75 in Bengaluru

The number of Covid containment zones in Bengaluru city has increased to 75, with a maximum of 27 at Bommanahalli.

11 international travellers under isolation in D'gere

Davangere: People in Davangere district are worried about the spread of the Omicron variant of Covid-19 as the eleven passengers who came from abroad are under home isolation. Giving information about these foreign travellers, district surveillance officer said that since last two days, three people came from the US, one each from England, Ireland and Dubai, three from Germany and two more whose international travel details are yet to be ascertained are being monitored. He said that the test reports of all the travellers have come negative.

Rope in pvt labs, genome testing crucial, says TAC

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru

WITH the discovery of the Omicron variant of Covid-19 in Karnataka, experts from the Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) feel the state must add more testing laboratories in the city as part of the Indian SARS-CoV-2 Genomics Consortium (INSACOG).

The committee members, according to sources, said that to carry out whole genome sequencing and speed up the process, it is advisable to include more laboratories. "There are four government labs and two district labs now, it is suggested that two private labs be added," the experts said.

The state government had, during the second wave, established laboratories at Bowring Hospital, Mysuru Medical College, Hassan Institute of Medical Sciences, Belagavi Institute of Medical Sciences and two district laboratories at Vijayapura and Mangaluru.

They feel that if these labs are functional, it will be adequate. Though the equipment is installed, sources from the health department say the appointment of technical manpower and providing training is necessary to make them operational. The TAC has called for urgently expediting this process.

As the Centre is yet to take a decision on including private laboratories under INSACOG, the state government will have to wait for approval.

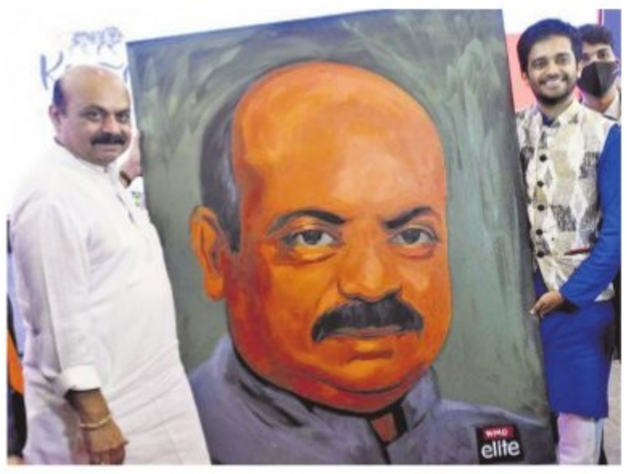
STRAWS IN THE WIND

Scribe swings a googly at candidates

Candidates from Mysuru-Chamarajanagar constituency — Raghu Kautilya (BJP), Manjegowda (JDS), Thimmayya (Congress) — were left squirming in their seats at a media interaction organised by the Mysuru District Journalists' Association. When a reporter threw a challenge, asking them to take a public vow, in God's name, that they would not give a single rupee to lure voters and win the elections, all three leaders kept mum. Only Vatal Nagaraj (Kannada Chalavali Vatal Paksha) piped up while Raghu skipped a direct reply, saying instead that all the candidates swear to abide by the Constitution while filing nominations. Thimmayya and Manjegowda did not even bother to respond.

When Mr Neta gets a doctorate

The honorary doctorate, once reserved for persons of extraordinary calibre, are now a dime a dozen, and handed out by universities without discrimination to politicians eager to burnish their image. Recently, a prominent politician and wannabe CM was awarded an honorary doctorate, raising the hackles of a particular complainant who had filed cases against the neta. The man immediately took to social media to vent, terming it a "so-called doctorate conferred on a politician who has committed serious crimes. The High Court has passed orders against him for corruption..." Last time, this politician escaped imprisonment by the skin of his teeth, he can't be lucky all the time, the complainant told this scribe.



Chief Minister Basavaraja Bommai with the artist Vilas Nayak | EXPRESS

'Open-top' model makes for easy portrait

On a balmy Saturday evening, the Taj West End on Race Course Road was abuzz with activity -- Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai was to interact with delegates from the corporate world at an event organised by Wealth Management Group. As Bommai descended on the venue, a pleasant surprise awaited him: well-known artist Vilas Nayak had painted Bommai's portrait, and got the resemblance bang on. "Thank you for creating me. Seems it's made easy given my 'open top'," Bommai said, displaying a healthy sense of humour. The audience cracked up with laughter. Then the mechanical engineer in Bommai talked business. "I am a man in a hurry and ready to work 24x7 to ensure Karnataka contributes one-third of its share when India becomes a $5trillion economy by 2024. Each one of you should contribute," the told the business class.

Shishupala avatar for Yatnal

Vijayapura MLA Basangouda Patil Yatnal recently compared himself to Shishupala (whom Lord Krishna pardoned up to 99 mistakes, and killed him for his 100th mistake) at a press conference in Kalaburagi. A scribe wanted to know his reaction to the issue of seven BJP MLCs, who are entirely unconnected with Kalaburagi, trying to get themselves enrolled on the voters' list just to vote in favour of the BJP mayoral candidate. Yatnal, who was not ready to answer such questions, asked the journalists if they wanted to make him 'Shishupala', and went on to narrate the story of Krishna. He said a section of BJP leaders is counting his mistakes, and once he commits the crucial 100th mistake, he could land in a soup.

Advice to Cong: Grab the moment

A Congress supporter, who was a member of the Karnataka Legislative Council, is amazed at how the Grand Old Party is allowing opportunities to slip through its fingers, and failing to assert itself as an effective opposition. "These Congressmen could have put the BJP on the mat over the '40 per cent' allegation by contractors. They should have protested in each district on the corruption issue," he said, and reminded that Modi had once attacked the government as 'Dus per cent sarkar', but his own government is at the wrong end of the stick. "The farmers' issue and repeal of farm laws was another golden opportunity lost. The party should have protested and held padayatras from Kashmir to Kanyakumari, and Bengal to Gujarat," he said.

Tax revenue from industries will be used for development of villages on city outskirts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Sunday said the State Government is fully committed to the development of Bengaluru, including villages on the periphery of the state capital.

Tax revenue from industries located in the gram panchayats on the outskirts of the city will be used for the development of those villages, he said.

Addressing the BJP's 'Vijaya Sankalpa' convention at Attibele in Anekal taluk, the Chief Minister said comprehensive development of Bengaluru is not possible without ensuring the development of the villages in the suburbs of the city.

"Development of villages in gram panchayats adjoining Bengaluru on the lines of development of wards within Bengaluru is our priority," the CM said.

Meanwhile, addressing a party convention in Bidar, the Chief Minister said empowerment of gram panchayats is the government's aim and programmes have been formulated accordingly.

"Government services should be taken to the doors of the citizens. People need not be made to travel to taluk and zilla Panchayat offices for basic services. Focus of our government is development of the villages," he said.

An action plan of Rs 3,000 crore has been prepared for development of Kalyana Karnataka region, he added.

BJP united behind Bommai: Joshi

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Hubballi

RULING out any leadership change in the BJP government in the State, Union Minister Pralhad Joshi said the next election will be fought under the leadership of Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai.

"The national leadership has also directed party leaders not to speak out of turn over the issue. Even Minister K S Eshwarappa did not say anything about change in the leadership," he told reporters here on Sunday.

He also said the Narendra Modi government has changed the thinking and approach towards rural development and empowered the local bodies and their representatives by delegating more power and granting more funds.

"In addition to Rs 73,000 crore earmarked for the National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme, the Union government is spending Rs 1.33 lakh crore for various rural development programmes to ensure sustainable development. Though NREGS was started during the UPA period, we brought structural change to build basic infrastructure in rural areas," the minister said.

Joshi pointed out that earlier, the majority of grants released to gram panchayats was spent on works related to drinking water supply and electricity and hardly any amount was left for taking up other development works. However, with the implementation of Jal Jeevan Mission and Jaladhare schemes to provide tapped water, the GPs are left with enough funds to take up other civil works.

In Dharwad district itself, Rs 1,032 crore was spent under the Jaladhare scheme to supply water from Malaprabha reservoir to all 396 villages and Rs 363 crore will be granted under the Jal Jeevan Mission to install water supply lines and build water tanks, the minister said adding that in the state, out of 97 lakh households, 42 lakh have already got tapped water connection, which is a coverage of 43 per cent.

He said under the 15 Finance Plan (2020-2021 to 2025-26), the Modi government has earmarked a total of Rs 3.57 lakh crore, of which Rs 2.36 lakh crore and Rs 1.21 lakh crore were allocated for rural and urban local bodies respectively.

Cabinet expansion not likely: Karjol

Bengaluru/Vijayapura: Water Resources Minister Govind Karjol on Sunday said cabinet expansion is not likely to happen soon. Speaking to reporters at Nagatana in Vijayapura district on Sunday, Karjol said Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai is not likely to expand the cabinet anytime soon although it is his prerogative to do so. He also dismissed reports that the party is evaluating cabinet ministers on their performance. "The CM evaluates his cabinet colleagues time-to-time and it is a routine process," he said.

KSE stands by CM remark

Shivamogga: RDPR Minister K S Eshwarappa defended his statement that Industries Minister Murugesh Nirani will become chief minister soon, saying that Nirani has grown from an ordinary businessman to a business tycoon, and has the capacity to be CM. "By stating that Nirani will be CM, I recognised his ability. He has the chance to be a CM in the future. But, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai will continue to be CM till the next Assembly elections," Eshwarappa told reporters here on Sunday.

Women voters to call shots in Council polls

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @Tumakuru

IT will be women power on show at the December 10 Legislative Council elections to 25 seats as voters, who are members of local bodies, are more women than men.

The final voter list, as of November 23, 2021, has 51,854 women members against 47,205 men of the total electorate of 99,062. The remaining three are "others", or transgenders. Women constitute 52.34 per cent of the electorate as compared to 47.65 per cent men, which is a difference of 4.69 percent.

The gram panchayat elections are fought with 50 per cent of seats reserved for women as per a government passed in 2015. Apart from this, women have also won 2.65 per cent more seats from other categories.

"Karnataka is among 20 states in the country to implement 50 per cent reservation for women, which was 33 per cent till 2010. Bihar was the first to amend the Gram Swaraj and Panchayat Raj Act, 1993," said Kadashettyhalli Sathish, a two-time gram Panchayat member in Gubbi taluk of Tumakuru district and general secretary of Karnataka Panchayat Raj Parishat.

"Women members understand problems of the people at the grassroots level. They will be choosy in electing MLCs," he said.

Former Prime Minister and JDS patriarch HD Deve Gowda said, "When I was the chief minister in 1994, we implemented reservation for OBCs in local bodies and also pushed for 33 per cent quota for women in the Assembly and Lok Sabha."

Twenty local bodies in Bengaluru Urban have 1,077 women members as against 907 men. In Belagavi's dual seat, of the total electorate of 8,875, 4,646 are women and 4,229 men.

JDS to announce its stand on alliance today

Mysuru: At a time when speculations are rife that the BJP and JDS are inching towards forming an alliance for the Legislative Council polls, JDS leader and former chief minister H D Kumaraswamy said a decision on this will be announced on Monday. Speaking to media persons here on Sunday, Kumaraswamy reiterated that no decision has been taken on extending support to the saffron party in the December 10 council polls. "No decision has been taken on whom to support in the constituencies where we have not fielded candidates. The Congress has not approached us while BJP veteran B S Yediyurappa made a public appeal to the JDS for support in the elections. He has even made a personal call in this regard. It's a personal alliance of me and Yediyurappa, but not of the party," he said.

BSY hits campaign trail in 3 districts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

THE BJP, which is leaving no stone unturned to win the council polls from the Mysuru-Chamarajanagar double-member constituency and the Mandya council constituency, got a major boost with veteran party leader B S Yediyurappa hitting the campaign trail in the three districts on Sunday.

Yediyurappa first took part in a election campaign meeting organised with local body members and party workers at Mandya. Calling himself a proud son of Mandya district, Yediyurappa campaigned for BJP candidate BC Manju and said that there was an assumption that whoever gets a Congress ticket will win the election.

"But this has changed over the years and today, the the grand old party doesn't have any except one or two who has been elected from the state," he said and added that the Congress has "stopped breathing" in 26 states and, by the next election, it will stop breathing in Karnataka.

Former CM B S Yediyurappa, minister S T Somashekar, BJP candidate Raghu Kautilya, MP Pratap Sinha and others during campaigning in Mysuru on Sunday | UDAYSHANKAR S

Later in the day, he held a meeting at Santhemarahalli in Chamarajanagar district followed by another at Rajendra Convention hall in Mysuru.

Seeking support for party candidate Raghu Kautilya from the Mysuru-Chamarajanagar double-member constituency, Yediyurappa hailed him for his service during the pandemic and urged the local body members to give their first preferential vote to the party candidate.

Farmers' meet in Belagavi before session

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

FARMERS from across the state will hold a convention in Belagavi on December 12, a day before the winter session of the state legislature starts in the border district.

The convention is being held to put pressure on the government to revoke amendments to the APMC Act and Karnataka Land Reforms Act, increase paddy procurement centres and provide compensation for crop loss due to heavy rains in the last few weeks.

The farmers are also demanding that the elected representatives discuss issues related to farmers welfare during the session.

T Yashwanth, Karnataka Prantha Raitha Sangha leader and State Core Committee member of Samyukt Kisan Morcha, said farmers across the state are in distress as recent rains caused extensive damage to crops, milk unions have cut procurement prices and the government has not opened paddy procurement centres across the state.

The government needs to look at all these issues and also repeal amendments to the APMC Act and Karnataka Land Reforms Act, the farmer leader said.

South K'taka districts better off, reveals report

THE report has been prepared taking into consideration parameters of health, education and standard of living. There are 12 indicators considered, such as nutrition, child and adolescent mortality, maternal health, years of schooling, school attendance, access to cooking fuel, sanitation, drinking water, electricity, housing, assets and bank accounts.

What is shocking is that Karnataka stands last in the South in terms of people deprived of nutrition. Close to 34 per cent of the population has no access to proper nutrition. A household is considered deprived if any child between the ages of 0 and 59 months, or a woman between the ages of 15 and 49 years, or a man between the ages of 15 and 54 years -- on whom the data is available -- are found to be undernourished.

The survey reveals that 12.36 per cent of new mothers have not received at least four antenatal care facilities or not received any assistance from trained or skilled medical personnel. The report states that even today, close to 22 per cent of the population in Karnataka is deprived of cooking fuel, which means that they cook using cow dung patties, agricultural residue, shrubs, wood, charcoal or coal. Though percentage wise the fuel situation has improved in the last five years, 21.9 per cent still use traditional methods of cooking, which is hazardous to their health.

Also, 8.7 per cent of the population has not gone to school, which means that not even one member of a household aged 10 years or older has completed six years of schooling, the report stated.

On the divide between northern and southern districts of the state, Prof RS Deshpande, former director of the Institute for Social and Economic Change and an economist, said that one has to look at the growth poll theory, where growth is attracted to a region that has better facilities. In Karnataka, southern districts have better infrastructure and naturally, development goes towards them. "Places like Bengaluru, Mysuru and surrounding places develop, while it is not the case with North Karnataka districts. Focus and investment should be directed towards deprived districts. Underdeveloped districts need more resources, but it is not being done. The districts that are doing good are given more funding which takes them from good to better. At the same time, underdeveloped districts still lag behind. There is a need for uniform justification," he opined.

On a positive note, the report points to development in certain areas. As compared to the 2015-16 report, those deprived of school attendance has been reduced from 3.54 per cent to 2.2 per cent. There are significant changes in cooking fuel (45.54 per cent to 21.9 per cent), sanitation (43.11 per cent to 25.2 per cent) and drinking water (14.51 per cent to 6.9 per cent) in the last five years. However, the percentage of people deprived of housing has not changed much as it has gone down from 37.3 per cent to 36.4 per cent.

EYE ON POLLS

CONGRESS WANTS TO UNITE BALLARI AGAIN

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bangalore/Ballari

WITH the Legislative Council polls just four days away, there is hectic campaigning in Ballari district.

During the campaign on Sunday, one Congress MLA assured the gram panchayat that the Congress will restore Ballari to its united status, if elected to power.

The party, which has its finger on the local pulse on this issue, has realised that not many gram panchayat members are happy with divided Ballari district.

The MLA assured them that if the Congress comes to power, it would restore the district to its original status.

But another Congressman realised that it isn't so easy to slice and stitch districts together. The former MLA, who did not want to be quoted, said there are two camps on this issue — those in Vijaynagara want bifurcation, while those in Ballari oppose it.

When contacted, former minister Eshwar Khandre who is also Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee (KPCC) working president, said it is his individual opinion, and a party we will take a decision at the right time.

ITI workers lose jobs, stage protest

Company says protesters were from outsourcing agency which has withdrawn from contract

DONNA EVA @Bengaluru

WORKERS of ITI Limited, who were protesting outside the premises for five days, are yet to hear from the company. The workers were notified that they had been terminated from service, when they arrived for work on Wednesday morning, and have since been refused entry.

Though the workers were on contract, some had been working with the company for almost 35 years. "They've said it's due to a change in contractor, but there's no clue as to who the contractor is or how to contact them. Many of the workers have been with the company for decades, all their work is assigned and monitored by the company authorities," said Maitreyi Krishnan, who is part of the Karnataka General Labour Union (KGLU) and is representing the workers in several cases in the labour court.

The company had earlier been maltreating the workers by not paying pending salaries, Provident Fund or Employee State Insurance. In July 2020, under the excuse of contract termination, they had fired around 400 workers, but handpicked about 150 of the 400 to retain their positions. The workers demanded their back pay, which amounted to almost Rs 1.5 lakh per worker, but the company refused to pay them. Following this, the workers had come together, forming a union under KGLU, and filing cases against the company. Since then, according to Krishnan, they had been facing harassment. On December 1, union members were singled out and not allowed to enter the premises, while other essential workers were allowed in.

"They had told us they didn't want workers who were part of unions as we knew everything about laws and regulations," said Balakrishna R, an operator and installer who had worked for the company for eight years, and a union member.

"Regional Labour Commissioner Antony Sebastian had a meeting with us on the first day, and advised the company not to terminate us. All the cases we had filed are still pending, but they had mentioned multiple times not to terminate us," said Hemanth Kumar, a quality assurance engineer who was terminated after working for the company for four years. "They've done this because we decided to form a union and file a regularisation case, because of this we will prosecute them," said Kumar. The commissioner had allegedly warned the company that they were not respecting the orders of both the court and commissioner, and were liable for prosecution. The management said it was ready to face prosecution.

Deputy General Manager Murdeshwar told TNIE, "They are not ITI employees, they're part of the agency which has withdrawn from its contract."

Three minors held for creating ruckus

BENGALURU: Pulikeshi Nagar police arrested three minor for creating ruckus in Jeevanahalli on Sunday. A senior police officer said all the three were under the influence of drugs and alcohol and they tried to rob a motorist, pelted stones at houses and attacked people. On Saturday, they also beat a stray dog to death with iron rods. They have been sent to the state home for boys. ENS

14-year-old girl falls to death from 12th floor

Bengaluru: A 14-year-old girl died after falling from the 12th floor of an apartment in Hulimavu on Saturday night. Based on a preliminary investigation, police suspect it to be a case of suicide. The deceased has been identified as Vaishnavi, daughter of Veerendra, a civil contractor. She was a Class 9 student at a private school. The family reside in Venugopal Nagar in Hulimavu. A senior police officer said around 10.30 pm, Vaishnavi went to the balcony attached to the drawing room after having dinner. After a while, her brother heard her screaming, went to see what happened and found that she had fallen down. She was shifted to a nearby hospital where she was declared brought dead. Hulimavu police inspected the spot and ruled out an accidental fall. However, no suicide note found was found. The body was handed over to the family on Sunday. ENS

Man kills minor daughter's lover, arrested

Bengaluru: VV Puram police have arrested a man for allegedly beating his minor daughter's lover to death. Narayana Veeraswamy (39), a resident of Vinoba Nagar and a goods auto driver, was arrested on Saturday. A senior police officer said on Thursday evening, Veeraswamy came home and found his neighbour Nivesh Kumar (22), a daily wage labourer, with his daughter. He questioned Kumar and assaulted him with a stick. Kumar sustained severe injuries and collapsed. Veeraswamy carried Kumar in his auto and dumped him in front of Victoria Hospital and escaped. Kumar, who was profusely bleeding, was admitted to the emergency ward where he succumber later. Kumar's parents, who had been to Tamil Nadu for a family function, filed a missing person's complaint after returning, and identified the body. Kumar's uncle Loganathan, who saw him with Veeraswamy on Thursday, alerted the police who took Veeraswamy into custody. During interrogation, he confessed to the crime. Kumar had come to the city two months ago with his parents and become friends with Veeraswamy's daughter, police said. ENS

LSD strips worth ₹25L stuck behind stamp papers seized

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

PSYCHEDELIC drug LSD worth Rs 25 lakh that was stuck behind stamp papers in the form of strips was seized by the anti-smuggling unit of Bengaluru City Customs. The recipient, who came to collect the consignment, has been arrested. Though it is common to conceal drugs in toys and other products, the use of a letter has stumped the department officials.

A source said that LSD in powder form was concealed in 1,120 strips (each in the size of a stamp) inside an envelope that reached the FPO at Chamarajpet. "Thick sheets of paper contained these colourful strips pasted adjacent to each other with the drug concealed beneath it. They had been purchased on Darknet," he said.

The Customs decided to change the strategy to nab the recipient based at Banaswadi, the source explained. "After detecting drugs, we detain the parcel for a day or two with the department and Narcotics Control Bureau is alerted. The individual constantly tracking the parcel online could get cautious because of the delay," the source added.

In this incident, the parcel was dispatched to the local post office at Banaswadi so as not to raise suspicion. "The anti-smuggling unit officers had reached the area in advance. The recipient did not wait for the consignment to reach home. He reached the post office to collect it and was caught red-handed after he collected it," he added.

The arrested Indian national is in jail after being booked under the NDPS Act, the source said.

The previous mega seizure at the post office was in November 2020 when Molly pills (MDMA drug) weighing 2.34 kg and valued at Rs 1.2 crore were hidden in a foot massager that reached here from France.

Covid may rise in January, 100 % vaccination by Dec-end: Officials

'People need not panic but they have to be alert and follow precautionary measures'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

CAUTION should be the watch word, going forward as the department of public health believes that Covid-19 cases might begin increasing from January 15 and peak out in February and March, next year.

Director of Public Health and Family Welfare Telangana, Dr G Srinivasa Rao, speaking to media persons, said Sunday said that apart fro double vaccination, following Covid-appropriate behaviour is a must for everyone.

The department is awaiting the results of the samples of 13 patients who arrived from at risk counties and sent for genome sequencing for Omicron to Centre for DNA Fingerprinting and Diagnostics (CDFD).

Telangana Institute of Medical Sciences (TIMS).

The patients have since been quarantined at Telangana Institute of Medical Sciences (TIMS) The other passengers who travelled to Hyderabad from various countries between December 1 and 5 are under home isolation and being monitored by the health workers.

Dr Srinivasa Rao said that all the patients quarantined at TIMS are asymptomatic and are under observation. He said what all is known about Omicron till now is that it spreads faster than Delta variant and it might taken another week to know how deleterious it is. He warned the people to take precautions as Omicron is spreading very fast around the globe though no hospitalizations and deaths are being reported on a large scale from anywhere.

The symptoms of Omicron include severe headaches, body pains and dizziness. One should go for the test at a nearby testing centre if one has these symptoms.

Allaying fears over Omicron, Srinivasa Rao said "People need not panic but they have to be alert and follow precautionary measures as the state is not in a position to go in for another lockdown. He, however, assured that the state government is fully prepared to tackle the situation in terms of infrastructure, man-force and oxygen."

Elaborating over infrastructure, Dr Rao said that, the total bed capacity in the state was about 66,000 including private 27,000 in private hospitals. This apart, about 6,000 beds are ready for children. Almost all the beds have oxygen supply. The oxygen generating capacity in Telangana is currently 370 metric tons it can be increased to 500 tons if according to the need, he added.

As regards vaccination, he said that by the end of this month, 100 per cent single dose vaccination would be arrived.

43 medical students test positive at Karimnagar

Karimnagar: 43 medical students including staff were tested Covid positive at Chalmeda Institute of Medical Sciences on Sunday. In the wake of positive cases, the management declared holiday. District Medical and Health Officer Dr Juveria said that few days ago, a graduation ceremony was held at the college and all the students and staffs participated in it. Being medical students they conducted tests on themselves and though some were asymptomatic, they were tested positive as well.

VACCINATION MADE COMPULSORY IN PONDY

BAGALAVAN PERIER B @ Puducherry

THE Puducherry government has made vaccination against Covid-19 mandatory for the eligible population in the Union Territory. An order to this effect was issued on Saturday, just five days after the Union government submitted in the Supreme Court that vaccination is voluntary, and not mandatory.

The UT's Directorate of Health and Family Welfare Services, issuing the orders, said it was invoking sections of the Puducherry Public Health Act, 1973, and enforcing "compulsory vaccination with immediate effect". The order added that those violating it would be liable to face penal action, as per the provisions of the law.

Lieutenant Governor Tamilisai Soundarajan, addressing reporters on Sunday, justified the move and said, "We took the decision considering the safety and welfare of the people. Vaccines safeguard people from the effects of Covid-19." She added, however, that the government does not intend to punish those who fail to comply.

A senior health official in Puducherry said some States were making submission of vaccine certificate mandatory to enter their borders. "Similarly, we have made vaccination compulsory to protect people from new variants of Covid."

The official said the penal action to be taken against violators would be decided by the government.

Covid fatalities high, Centre warns Kerala again

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ T'Puram

HIGHLIGHTING the high number of Covid cases and related fatalities over the past few weeks, the Central government has once again urged Kerala to bring the Covid situation under control. The concern was raised in a letter sent on December 4 by Union Health Secretary Rajesh Bhushan to his counterpart in the state.

Though Kerala continues to report a high number of daily cases, the letter chose to ignore the fact that most of the recently-listed deaths are due to the addition of previously unaccounted ones. The state had started the reconciliation effort to correct past mistakes on October 22. So far, close to 12,000 deaths have been added in this manner. As a result, the percentage of Kerala's contribution to the number of Covid-related deaths in the country has crossed 75%. A death analysis report by the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare (MoHFW) a fortnight ago was more scathing on the quantum of backlog deaths being added. It said the situation has brought to fore a gap in the state's effective implementation of containment strategy in the past few months and belied claims regarding the management of fatalities. The recent letter said that the state reported a slight increase in weekly deaths to 2,118 (week ending December 3) from 1,890 (week ending November 26). It also pointed out that four districts -- Thrissur, Malappuram, Kozhikode and Kollam -- were reporting a high quantum of weekly deaths. "While the state's reconciliation effort is a positive move, the government should also mention the date of these deaths for more clarity," said Dr N M Arun, public health activist.

Consumer panel asks Ford to pay bizman

YATHIRAJU @ Bengaluru

CARMAKER Ford India Private Limited has been directed by the consumer commission to compensate a city businessman, in addition to refund him the cost of a purchased car, which had a manufacturing defect.

The Bangalore Rural and Urban I Additional District Consumer Disputes Redressal Forum directed the opposite parties – Ford India Private Limited and PPS Business Solutions Private Limited -- to compensate Kamal Sharma, a resident of Frazer Town.

The complainant had purchased an Ecosport (Trend-MT) from Ford India by paying Rs 11.37 lakh, and the same was registered in February 2020.

The forum, comprising President HR Srinivas and Member SM Sharavathi, said the complainant is entitled for refund of the vehicle's cost, Rs 11.24 lakh, along with interest of 12 per cent per annum from December 17, 2020, the day the opposite parties expressed their desire to refund the amount till the date of payment of the entire amount. The forum also said the complainant is entitled to Rs 2.12 lakh, translating to the cost of additional fittings.

Further, the commission said that on several occasions, opposite parties took several days to repair the vehicle to the satisfaction of the complainant, and ultimately could not do it. During that period, the complainant was unable to use his car because of which, he has suffered mentally and physically. Therefore, it would be just, proper and reasonable to pass the order to pay a sum of Rs 25,000 towards inconvenience, Rs 25,000 towards damages, and Rs 5,000 towards litigation expenses, by the opposite parties, the commission said, while asking the complainant to return the vehicle along with all upholstery and changes made to the vehicle intact within 15 days to the opposite parties, after receipt of the refund of the amount.

Woman dies of burn injuries, son critical

Kochi: In a mysterious incident, a 42-year-old woman died after she was found with burn injuries at her house in Nayarambalam on Sunday. Sindhu, wife of the late Saju, of Kizhakkethettayil, died on the way to the hospital, the police said. Her son, Athul (17), who too sustained severe burns, has been admitted to a private hospital in the city. His condition remains critical. Sindhu's family alleged that, while being taken to the hospital in an ambulance, she took the name of their neighbour as the person behind the incident. ENS

Cyclone Jawad rips apart Kakinada-Uppada Beach Road

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kakinada

THE Kakinada-Uppada Beach Road has suffered damages under the impact of Cyclone Jawad. The tides rose up to three metres high and as a result the sea water flowed across the road.

Following the cyclone alert, the road has been shut since December 4. As a result, the residents of Uppada and neighbouring villages have been suffering due to the lack of a proper transport facility.

The road bore the brunt even during cyclones Amphan and Phythei. The R&B Department and the Seaport Department have strengthened the side wall with the larger stones, but in vain.

According to sources, the Uppada and adjacent few villages were submerged in the sea due to erosion. Most of the families who earn a livelihood by fishing, requested that the late former chief minister Dr. YS Rajasekhar Reddy to take up measures to control the erosion.

Following their request, a new technology, Geo-Tube was implemented. As part of it, large stones were tied only on a certain extent of the seashore with a big rope as a net to secure villages.

However the State and Central Government have not taken any necessary steps to control erosion between the Kakinada and Uppada Road. More than five houses were washed away because of the recent high tides. Another house is of the verge collapsing.

INDIAN WHEAT TO FEED AFGHANS ON THE BRINK OF STARVATION

India's decision to send 50,000 metric tonnes of wheat and life-saving medicines to Afghanistan through the Wagah border in Pakistan without conditionalities marks the first tangible engagement with the Taliban ever since it captured Kabul in August last. By doing so, India is walking the talk on providing humanitarian aid to the nation that became a basket case following crippling sanctions and an international freeze on its assets. UN estimates suggest about 55% of the Afghan population, which would work out to about 22.8 million people, face food insecurity this winter. Of them, a whopping 9 million face life-threatening famine, including 1 million babies. India first made the offer in October on the sidelines of a conference in Russia. The question of transportation then became the sticking point as Pakistan refused to let Indian trucks take the goods right up to the Afghan border. The ban on Indo-Pak trade through land since 2019 following the reorganisation of J&K complicated matters. It finally got resolved last week when Pakistan allowed Afghan trucks to take charge of the goods from the Wagah border. The actual handover will take some more time.

This is the first time India does not have its feet on the ground in Afghanistan, as it evacuated all diplomats in August. During the earlier Taliban regime, New Delhi had a functional mission, which facilitated funneling development aid. As of now, 10 countries have resumed embassy services and the EU is in the process of setting up a joint mission in Kabul. There is no illusion, though, that the Taliban has changed its spots despite recently making some noises about women's rights. Reports of enforced disappearances of tens of former members of the Afghan security forces despite a general amnesty announced by the Taliban indicated its double-speak.

India is understandably wary of restoring diplomatic ties as it does not want to accord legitimacy to the brutal regime. Expecting the Taliban to stop exporting terror would be naive as it is fostered by Pakistan. Since poverty spawns terror, long-term economic coersion too has its downside. The need of the hour is to manage the situation while not losing the goodwill earned over decades of people-centric support.

EPS-OPS UNITY WILL STENGTHEN OPPN IN TN

In yet another turn in the rollercoaster ride that is the AIADMK's journey, the party last week formalised its current dual leadership by amending its bylaws. That the leaders, joint coordinator and former CM Edappadi K Palaniswami and coordinator and former deputy CM O Panneerselvam, did not see eye to eye was well known. Murmurs of Palaniswami seeking to solidify his position as party supremo have long done the rounds, with Panneerselvam being reportedly sidelined. Yet, days after a dramatic meeting in which senior party leaders made murmurs in favour of V K Sasikala's return to the party, the leadership closed ranks against the late CM J Jayalalithaa's confidante. More interestingly, by formalising dual leadership, the duo have yoked their fate to one another, with OPS's position strengthened.

Once the new rules are ratified by the AIADMK's general council, party cadre may directly vote for the leadership who must contest on a single ticket. Win or lose, EPS and OPS must do it together, at least till such time another duo emerges with the support to challenge them. As of now, they are expected to win unopposed.

The amendments, for now, close the door to the re-entry of Sasikala, who has been attempting to garner support since being released from prison after serving a sentence in a disproportionate assets case. This also comes as a confidence booster to the party's rank and file, smarting after the loss in the Assembly elections. With long-delayed polls to Tamil Nadu's urban local bodies around the corner, the cadre had expressed concerns that the leadership was not on the same page. Further, there were fears that its space as the lead opposition party was being ceded to its ally, the BJP, which has made no bones about its desire to someday capture power in the state. The history of the AIADMK has been filled with dramatic twists and turns. The compromise among its top leaders comes amidst a series of probes launched by the ruling DMK against the AIADMK's former ministers. A united front will not only ensure that the party has a fighting chance in the upcoming polls, it may also be essential in ensuring the voice of the state's opposition rings loud and clear.

It is important to view the elevation of the ASEAN-China ties to a Comprehensive Strategic Partnership within the context of recent incidents in the South China Sea

FORKED TONGUE STRATEGY: CHINA'S DEALINGS WITH ASEAN

AMIT BANDRE

SHANKARI SUNDARARAMAN
Professor at School of International Studies, JNU, New Delhi

ASIAN AXIS

If the ASEAN still believes that China will eventually move towards a more binding Code of Conduct in the South China Sea, the events over the past few weeks should be evidence enough that this may not be achieved. Increasingly, Beijing's efforts to push the normative order, particularly in regards to the maritime spaces vis-a-vis the ASEAN states, is a stark revelation of the Chinese ability to speak with a forked tongue.

On November 22, the ASEAN and China concluded a Special Summit to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations. The corollary of this event's objective was to emphasise how this partnership will evolve in the future; wherein it stated that the elevation of ties to the level of a Comprehensive Strategic Partnership will highlight "peace, security, prosperity and sustainable development". In light of the events that took place before and after the special summit, perhaps it would be important to question, in a tongue-in-cheek manner, as to whose peace, security, prosperity and sustainable development did the summit actually address?

It's interesting to note that the November summit of the ASEAN-China ties took shape in the background of developments in the South China Sea in mid-November where Beijing and the Philippines had a stand-off over the Second Thomas Shoal, also known as the Ayungin Shoal, a territory contested between the two nations since 1999. The stand-off took place over the Philippines' efforts to deliver supplies to its defence personnel stationed on this shoal. The Ayungin Shoal is also the region where a stranded vessel known as the Sierra Madre has been a bone of contention for more than two decades and the stationing of troops there has been to ensure that incursions from China do not go undetected. This latest incident saw a scathing response from the Filipino Secretary of State Teodoro Locsin, who categorically stated that the violation of movement of Filipino naval vessels went against Article 4 of the Philippines-United States Mutual Defence Treaty (MDT), pushing the boundaries of the US-China rivalry into stark focus. Locsin reiterated the significance of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Seas (UNCLOS) by stating that the Ayungin Shoal was an integral part of the Philippines. He also stated that the region falls under the Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) of the Philippines, which is clearly recognised under the tenets of the UNCLOS. Chinese assertions in the region do not recognise UNCLOS and are based on its claims to the nine-dash line that covers almost 80% of the South China Sea waters as its own. China has even rejected the ruling of the PCA in 2016.

Similarly on 1 December 2021, Chinese vessels objected to the Indonesian exploration for oil off the Natuna islands in the north Natuna Sea, which Beijing calls the South China Sea. The incursions by the Chinese into these waters started a few months ago, interestingly in the immediate aftermath of the AUKUS deal when Indonesia expressed concerns over the potential trend of an impending arms race in the regional waters. This long-standing incursion took more focus with objections to Indonesian exploration in its own Exclusive Economic Zone. Indonesia has been repeatedly highlighting the relevance of international law and the UNCLOS, even as the friction with China over the Natuna region has been evident from almost 2014. Indonesia's response to the repeated violations into its EEZ has been to augment its defence capabilities around the Natuna archipelago, where the Natuna Besar Island has seen a revamping of both defence and naval personnel.

> Chinese actions have left no one in doubt about its lack of adherence to the UNCLOS. As the gap between word and action is critical in understanding the language of interstate behaviour, China's ability to speak in a forked tongue needs to be recognised by the ASEAN

It is important to view the elevation of the ASEAN-China ties to the Comprehensive Strategic Partnership (CSP) within the context of these incidents in the South China Sea. Even as the CSP is a broad based approach to furthering ties between the two and encompasses political, economic and security related matters, the tangibles of this elevation may remain merely rhetorical. During the East Asia Summit (EAS) in October 2021, the ASEAN raised the level of its ties with Australia to the Comprehensive Strategic Partnership, belying the view that there were strained relations with Australia post the AUKUS deal. So the CSP in itself may be seen as a form of diplomatic leverage, with little or no binding impact.

A close reading of the Joint Statement issued at the conclusion of the summit reveals four core areas of challenge in the China-ASEAN ties, even as the effort to portray a business as usual sentiment falls woefully short. First, it claims to reaffirm the principles of the ASEAN Outlook on the Indo-Pacific, an approach led by the organisation that falls short of recognising the tremendous transitions shaping the region; second, under the political-security cooperation, it talks of mutual respect under international law and here China's repeated incursions testify to its unwillingness to respect the letter and spirit of the Joint Statement; third, it addresses the commitment to the UNCLOS, which has been repeatedly violated by China; fourth, it states that ASEAN and China will move from a DOC to a COC on the principles enshrined in UNCLOS. These latter two aspects of the Joint Statement are farcical as Chinese actions have left no one in doubt about its lack of adherence to the UNCLOS. As the gap between word and action is critical in understanding the language of interstate behaviour, China's ability to speak in a forked tongue needs to be recognised by the ASEAN.

PLANNING FOR DEMOGRAPHIC SHIFT TOWARDS ELDERLY

ANURADHA GOYAL
Author and founder of IndiTales

All these years, we have heard of India's demographic dividend, referring to our higher percentage of young working age population, especially when compared to the ageing developed economies. Ample debates have focused on whether the population was a problem or an advantage. What we now need to look at is the future of this young generation that is steadily moving towards old age. As per 2019 data, India had about 139 million people above the age of 60. That is about 10% of our population, and it is not a small number. Given the improved health facilities, we are living a lot longer than our immediate ancestors.

People having formal employment retire around the age of 60, while those in the unorganised sector may continue to work till their health and body allows it. The long lifespans would demand increased working years, which in turn necessitates re-organising the policies and structure of society to include more grey hair.

A lot of people in their 50s are now planning well ahead for their old age—mostly the well-placed wealthy ones, but more importantly well-informed knowledgeable ones. We hear of luxury old-age homes coming up in the hills and in places like Coimbatore or Pune. This small section of society is not waiting for the next generation to plan anything for them; they have already planned their own old age, choosing the destination and the company in which they want to spend their grown-up years. It reminded me of the care homes for the elderly that Ma Anand Sheela runs in Switzerland and other places as a business.

Tina Ambani of Reliance group used to run a magazine called Harmony as part of the Harmony for Silvers Foundation, focusing on the 55+ population, highlighting their achievements and contributions to society and needs, following the mantra of both lifestyle and empowerment. The magazine stopped publication three years ago with a promise to go online but I guess the pandemic came in the way. I hope they come back with a bang soon.

In a youth-obsessed media and start-up space, I rarely see initiatives focused on the elderly—be it for their travel requirements, social and lifestyle needs, or tapping into their experience and wisdom. Even when it comes to products like hearing aids or wheelchairs, most available in India are imported ones. With the growing numbers of the elderly not just in India, the need for these goods is bound to go up. It is a good time to invest in businesses that can produce quality products and solutions locally with minimal incremental innovation or localisation. It would benefit both the businesses as well as the elderly.

> In a youth-obsessed media and start-up space, I rarely see initiatives focused on the elderly—be it for their travel requirements, social and lifestyle needs, or tapping into their experience and wisdom. Even products like hearing aids or wheelchairs available in India are imported ones

Recently, I came across a report called Index on Quality of Life for Elderly published by the Institute for Competitiveness. It looks at the data on the elderly in India, including projections for the next 30 years. The report indicates that we still have time to handle the demographic shift of population from youth to those in the working age to the retired age group. I agree it is a timely analysis of an issue that would probably peak around 2050. Having said that, even today the number of elderly people is not small. It talks about the well-being of senior citizens on four accounts—financial, social, health and income security.

What I missed in this report is the cultural integration of the elderly in society. Can new systems be evolved for this? The elderly can be cultural and emotional guardians for children growing up without parents and kids with working parents, or simply be their storytellers, listeners or playmates. They can teach based on their life experience while learning new skills from the young. Can we create spaces for the elderly to socialise with their peer group, facilitating activities that suit their age? I see one such space at a beach near me in Goa but then no one thought about the usability of an open area in a place where it rains more than six months in a year.

Traditionally, Indian family systems naturally took care of the elderly—simply by keeping them engaged in family hustle and bustle with their roles shifting with age. The cycle of taking care of the elderly continued generation after generation, till the family units scattered around the globe following the great career opportunities. This means we have family and friends around the world but maybe no one close to us to take care of us in our old age. The best solution would be to bring back the social system of families, but if that seems far-fetched, maybe we need to think of solutions at a society level. While one cannot deny the role of the government, this is not a situation that we can or should leave solely to them. Our elderly should get the love and respect they deserve, especially when it's time for them to relax after a long work innings. We must also cherish their wisdom that comes only with age.

An evergreen politician

The demise of Konijeti Rosaiah, former chief minister of unified Andhra Pradesh, is a great loss to both Telugu-speaking states. He was a veteran politician. The Congress chief ministers of unified AP used to change frequently, but Rosaiah was an evergreen minister in the Cabinet of almost all of them. His work as finance and health minister of AP will be remembered forever.
T Kailash Ditya, Hyderabad

Rosaiah was a statesman

Rosaiah always conducted himself as a statesman. Another virtue was that he never flaunted his post or position and remained untouched by power till the end. A spotless white dress and disarming smile besides his huge physique made Rosaiah easily identifiable, even in a crowd. Most of his debates in the Assembly were full of authentic information, often studded with the gems of his witticisms and satire. Though it is often said that politics is a trade for scoundrels, Rosaiah was an exception.
M Somasekhar Prasad, Hyderabad

Great loss to journalism

It is immensely saddening to know that Vinod Dua, a pioneer of Hindi journalism, passed away at the age of 67 due to post-Covid complications. He lived an inimitable life, rising from the refugee colonies in Delhi to becoming the first electronic media journalist to receive the Ramnath Goenka Excellence in Journalism Award, his first among many. His demise is an irreparable loss to professional journalism.
Haribandhu Panigrahi, Tarbha

Work towards unity instead

The Shiv Sena has done well to tick off West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee for going hammer and tongs at the Congress party and its leaders even as she endeavours to widen her party's footprint in other states. For quite some time now, Didi has been barking up the wrong tree by airing her acerbic views on the Congress at a time when she should instead be wooing it to join her and other opposition parties to take on the BJP and the NDA. Mamata is probably aware that if she is to take over the mantle as leader of the united opposition, she will have to cut the GOP to size first. But this might boomerang on her as the Congress, despite all its weaknesses, still remains the only pan India party in the opposition ranks.
C V Aravind, Bengaluru

Be sensitive to beliefs

Madras High Court judge, Justice R Suresh Kumar, rightly said that the government should take a conscious decision on matters relating to the exploitation of temple land for the interest of third parties. (Economic progress of state should not be at the expense of God, Nov 5). So-called 'secular' leaders are doing great harm to society. They have made it fashionable to make fun of religious scriptures or personalities. This needs to be stopped. People should not interfere with another's religious freedom and leaders must be sensitive to people's beliefs.
V Venkitasubramanian, Coimbatore

Kerala's pitiful roads

Malayalam actor Jayasurya's sarcastic remark that if monsoons were the reason for the delay in carrying out timely pothole repairs, there would be no roads in Cherrapunji is the fittest comment about the pitiful condition of roads in Kerala. Earlier also, such comments were made by the judiciary against the PWD ministry, but it has remained unmoved and has continued to blame local contractors. Smooth roads still remain a dream for taxpayers in Kerala.
P P Sahadevan, Nileshwar

Ban violent protests

The Centre has rightly directed six states to do whatever it takes to control the spread of the new variant of Covid, Omicron, 21 cases of which have already been reported in India. It is important for all states to ban violent protests, where Covid-appropriate protocol are all flouted. Such irresponsibility cannot be afforded in these trying times.

Army's killing of civilians over mistaken identity unites state's apex tribal bodies; chief minister promises probe

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati

THE gunning down of civilians by security forces in an ambush blunder in Nagaland's Mon district has all but wiped out the dividends of a ceasefire between insurgents and the security forces.

The seriousness of the situation is reflected in the decision of several apex tribal organisations to pull out of the ongoing Hornbill Festival that draws tourists from all over the world.

Security forces are on the back foot as Nagaland Chief Minister Neiphiu Rio said in a terse tweet that an SIT would be set up and justice delivered as per the law.

The attack united the various Naga tribes but distanced them from security and paramilitary forces. A perceived trust was built between both sides over the past two decades. It went for a toss.

The Nagas are viewing the incident as a massacre of a bunch of innocent youth. Along Longkumer, former editor of local English daily The Morung Express, said the incident might have far-reaching ramifications. Nagas also have a sizeable population in Assam, Manipur and Arunachal Pradesh.

"We have been divided for long. Now, there is some unity as evident from the various tribal organisations coming together in condemning the incident. People are also supporting the call for boycott of the Hornbill Festival," Longkumer said. He believes the incident would create a huge trust deficit between Nagas and the security forces.

Rosemary Dzuvichu, advisor to Naga Mothers' Association and co-convenor of Global Naga Forum, said no words could express the deep grief and anger at the "mad killing of our innocent youth by the Indian Army". Demanding that such violations of human rights and unwarranted killings under the impunity of Armed Forces (Special Powers) Act (AFSPA) must stop, she said there had been no trust between most Nagas and the security forces.

The gun fell silent in the state after rebels signed separate ceasefire agreements with the Centre over two decades ago.

Security officials point to lapses in intelligence and operational failure

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

THE killing of 13 villagers in Nagaland by security forces points to a clear case of intelligence failure, sources in the security establishment said on Sunday. Officials, however, claimed that security forces mistook six civilians for insurgents and shot them. In response, locals attacked the security forces with machetes and spears. Afterwards, soldiers of Assam Rifles opened fire again, killing seven more civilians.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah said he was "anguished" at the news of civilians, who were members of a tribal group, being killed. "Anguished over an unfortunate incident in Nagaland's Oting, Mon district. I express my deepest condolences to the families of those who have lost their lives. A high-level SIT constituted by the state government will thoroughly probe this incident to ensure justice to the bereaved families," Shah tweeted.

Saturday's incident took place in and around Oting village in Mon district, bordering Myanmar, during a counterinsurgency operation.

Firing began when a truck carrying 30 or more coalmine labourers were passing the Assam Rifles camp.

"The troopers had intelligence inputs about some movement of armed cadres of NSCN(K) in the area and on seeing the truck, they mistook the miners for rebels and opened fire which killed six labourers," a senior security official said, adding that there was a clear lapse of intelligence as well as operational failure.

"After the news of firing spread, hundreds of tribal people surrounded the camp. They burnt Assam Rifles vehicles and clashed with troopers with crude weapons," he said. Assam Rifles soldiers retaliated, and in the second attack seven more civilians and a security force member were killed, the official said.

In recent years, India has tried to persuade Myanmar to evict rebels from bases in the thick jungles of the unfenced region, which borders Nagaland, Manipur and Arunachal Pradesh. The Mon area is the stronghold of Naga group NSCN (K) and ULFA.

MP quits TV role in protest against suspension order

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR
@ New Delhi

PROTESTING against the suspension of 12 Rajya Sabha MPs including herself, Shiv Sena's Priyanka Chaturvedi tendered her resignation from the responsibility of anchoring the Sansad TV show called Meri Kahani. The MP from Maharashtra is among the 12 suspended for the entire session.

In a letter to Rajya Sabha chairman M Venkaiah Naidu, Chaturvedi stated she was stepping down. "After my arbitrary suspension, that has totally disregarded established parliamentary norms and rules to stifle my voice, my party's voice inside the chamber, I am unwilling to continue taking space on Sansad TV when my primary oath to the Constitution is being denied to me," she wrote.

She added that this was injustice. "That this suspension also chose to disregard my parliamentary track record and my contributing beyond the call of duty so as to give a platform to women parliamentarians to share their journey, I believe injustice has been done but as it is considered valid in the eyes of the chair, I must respect," she stated in the letter.

> I believe it is my duty that when the highest number of women MPs have been suspended in the recorded history of Rajya Sabha for an entire session for speaking up for the people of this country, I need to speak up for them and stand in solidarity for them
> Priyanka Chaturvedi, Shiv Sena MP

"I believe it is my duty that when the highest number of women MPs have been suspended in the recorded history of Rajya Sabha for an entire session for speaking up for the people of this country, I need to speak up for them and stand in solidarity for them," the letter said.

She thanked the Rajya Sabha chairman and Lok Sabha Speaker for considering her worthy of the responsibility given to her in the Sansad TV show. Chaturvedi also thanked the Sansad TV team for working with her and enriching her experience.

The 12 MPs were suspended at the end of the Monsoon session of Parliament following the impasse over the alleged use of Pegasus spyware.

Sisodia confident of Punjab win, gung ho on business scheme

VATSALA SHRANGI @New Delhi

WITH his party running an intense campaign in poll-bound Punjab, senior AAP leader Manish Sisodia on Sunday exuded confidence of winning a complete majority and forming a "full-fledged" government in the neighbouring state.

The general sentiment in Punjab is that the 'Arvind Kejriwal's style of politics' should be given a chance this time, Sisodia told this newspaper. "People have lost faith in the Congress and they don't want to return to the Akali Dal either. In this scenario, the pulse among the masses is that the AAP is the only viable political alternative which must be given a chance this time," he added.

> People have lost faith in the Congress and they don't want to return to the Akali Dal either. In this scenario, the pulse among the masses is that the AAP is the only viable political alternative which must be given a chance this time
> Manish Sisodia, AAP

People have become tired of the same old politics that offers no real change in their lives, he claimed. "They now want to opt for a government that works for them and not one that is embroiled in their own politics."

In 2017, the AAP was second with 20 seats while the SAD bagged 15 seats and the BJP managed to win just three seats. Congress, on the other hand, had won 77 seats and, in the process, brought down the curtain on the 10-year rule of the Shiromani Akali Dal-BJP combine government.

The AAP is hoping to be second time lucky next year given that the Congress' Punjab unit is in turmoil due to the clash between PCC president Navjot Singh Sidhu and erstwhile chief minister Amarinder Singh. Sidhu has been blowing hot and cold with Amarinder's successor Charanjit Singh Channi as well.

The AAP has been running an aggressive campaign with its top leadership wooing people by replicating the Delhi style of governance — from promising 300 units of free electricity per month for each household to waiving off pending power bills and reforming schools, if voted to power.

Regarding the reforms ushered in by the AAP government, Sisodia made mention of the recently launched 'Business Blasters Program'. The initiative allows students of Classes XI and XII across all government schools to be mentored and provided financial capital of ₹2,000 as seed money to help kick-start their business ideas.

With this project, Sisodia said, he hopes to give rise to some of the world's top companies in the country itself. "So far, the best talent from India is picked up by top companies abroad, be it Twitter or Google. My dream is to make world's top companies here in this country. These students from our schools, who will go to college with their start-ups already operating, will create some top ranking companies."

The top ten ideas of students will be presented before investors in an investment summit in February-March, he said, adding that it would become an annual feature from next year onwards.

Cong, AAP come together to slam BJP's 'sly design' in Punjab

HARPREET BAJWA @Chandigarh

BOTH Punjab Chief Minister Charanjit Singh Channi and AAP Punjab president and MP Bhagwant Mann have launched a scathing attack on the BJP.

While Channi said that the BJP had zeroed in on Capt Amarinder Singh and Sukhdev Singh Dhindsa as new allies to fill the space vacated by Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) to promote its divisive discourse in Punjab, Mann alleged that a very senior BJP leader had asked him what he would take to join the saffron party.

Channi said, "Punjab is one state that rebutted the anti-people and divisive agenda of the BJP and the charisma of Prime Minister Modi in the 2019 state assembly election."

Channi said, "The BJP used the Akali Dal in its anti-farmer agenda to implement the three black laws that the secular kisan struggle has forced Modi to repeal. The SAD had aggressively supported these legislations. Now Amarinder will function as the full-time tool of the BJP to implement its nefarious anti-people designs."

He pointed out that earlier, the Akali Dal functioned as the vehicle of the BJP to facilitate its parent organisation RSS to spread its wings in Punjab.

The RSS went to the extent of distorting even the Sikh history and ideology and the literature brought out by this body about a decade ago is evidence of that agenda. The Akali Dal never protested, the chief minister alleged.

Channi said now Capt Amarinder was all set to perform that malicious role. "Capt Amarinder replacing SAD as BJP ally was no surprise keeping in view his role to help BJP all along," he added.

Mann alleged that four days ago, a very senior BJP leader had called him and asked him what he would take to join the saffron party. He offered directly to either accept money or designation. He even said that once given a nod, Mann would be appointed as a cabinet minister with a ministry of his own choice.

Mann said, "I am here on a mission, not a commission." Mann said that he told the BJP leader, "My mission is to make Punjab prosperous, peaceful and developed. I don't care for offers from the BJP."

> BJP used Akali Dal in its anti-farmer agenda to implement the three black laws that the secular kisan struggle has forced Modi to repeal. The SAD had aggressively supported these legislations. Jairam for 100-day Parl meetings

New Delhi: Congress chief whip in Rajya Sabha Jairam Ramesh said on Sunday that he supported Vice-President M Venkaiah Naidu's suggestion that Parliament must meet for 100 days in a year, and added it should also deliberate upon key bills at length. The Congress leader has been critical of the passage of key bills without debate and scrutiny. Issues must be debated with depth, he said.

Rajya Sabha lost 50% sitting time

New Delhi: The Rajya Sabha lost 52.30 per cent of the scheduled sitting time during the first week of the ongoing winter session on account of disruptions and forced adjournments, the RS secretariat said. The best productivity of 100 per cent was reported on Friday, showing signs of return of the House to normal functioning, the RS secretariat said in a statement.

More family time: Shah promises 100-day leave to CAPF personnel

RAJESH ASNANI @Jaipur

UNION Home Minister Amit Shah has promised that the Narendra Modi government is working to ensure better healthcare facilities, increased housing satisfaction and a lot more family time for personnel of the Central Armed Police Forces (CAPF) who are guarding India's fronts under demanding conditions.

During his two-day visit to Rajasthan, Shah spent two days with BSF jawans on the India-Pakistan border. On Saturday, before having meal at the Rohitash outpost of the border, Shah praised the soldiers and said that the government was making arrangements to ensure that all jawans spent more days with their families.

"The jawans are deployed for the security of the country in 50 degree heat and minus temperatures in the cold seasons. The Central government is making efforts so that every soldier who gives his golden time to the country can spend about 100 days in a year with his family. This is a big responsibility of the government which will be fulfilled soon," asserted Shah.

The home minister said every CAPF employee will have a health card by February. "The soldiers deployed for the security of the country and their families should not have to face any problem in treatment. We will ensure that these health cards have been made. This card will have to be swapped for any disease. Modernisation will make the BSF's work very light and this will end the worries of all jawans and their families including those in CRPF, BSF and SSB. Efforts are also being made to give this card to every CAPF personnel by February next year," Shah added.

Shah is the first home minister of the country to have spent a night on the western border after a night patrol. Shah inquired about the security arrangements at Rohitash post. Commandant SN Pandey, on the Jaisalmer border adjacent to Pakistan, gave him information related to BSF's functioning. Shah was informed about attempts to encroach on the Indian border, without naming Pakistan.

India's potential cruise tourism spots set to be interlinked

PARVEZ SULTAN @New Delhi

THE Union tourism ministry is working in tandem with other central government departments – railways, civil aviation, and shipping – to develop infrastructure and connect prominent tourist destinations located along the Indian coastal line for cruise tourism.

"The tourism ministry has allocated funds to the shipping ministry to create passenger terminals at major ports including Mumbai and Visakhapatnam and in the process of giving out additional financial assistance for the same," said Union tourism minister G Kishan Reddy.

Under the Centre's SagarMala Project, Chennai, Vizag, and Andaman ports will be connected with Goa, which receives maximum foreign tourists, to encourage cruise tourism.

"Cruise tourism will be developed on a mission mode. Next week, tourism and shipping ministries are holding a meeting in which we will make an action plan to include adventure and eco tourism also. If cruise tourism develops in India, it will greatly benefit Goa. For passenger terminals at port, tourism will give funds to the shipping ministry," said Reddy while announcing the ministry's initiatives in Goa on Saturday.

The Centre has been working to introduce cruise tourism for long as it is believed that India with its vast and beautiful coastline, virgin forests and undisturbed idyllic islands can be a fabulous tourist destination for cruise tourists. The objective of the policy is to make India as an attractive cruise tourism destination with the state-of-the-art infrastructural and other facilities at various parts in the country.

The government officials said that efforts are on for developing appropriate infrastructure at ports for handling cruise vessels and facilitating movement of passengers.

Seat-sharing headache for Akhilesh ahead of polls

SP chief may have to part with more seats if alliance grows bigger

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE main opposition Samajwadi Party is likely toeing the BJP's 2017 plan to victory by clinching alliances with small outfits in various regions of Uttar Pradesh. The political viability of these alliances, however, will be on test at the time of seat sharing. Party chief Akhilesh Yadav has been claiming that his party would come to power with a mammoth majority in the election due in a few months for the 403-member UP Assembly.

With around half-a-dozen parties in his bouquet of alliances, the SP chief is taking time to finalise seat sharing in the face of dilemma over how much to spare and retain.

Akhilesh has stitched alliances with at least three parties in eastern UP. These are former BJP ally Suheldev Bharatiya Samaj Party (SBSP) of OP Rajbhar, Apna Dal (K) of Krishna Patel and Janwadi Socialist Party of Dr Sanjay Singh Chauhan.

In western UP, the SP has tied up with its old ally Rashtriya Lok Dal (RLD) led by Jayant Chadhury, and in Rohilkhand, Mahan Dal of Keshav Dev Maurya has joined the Samajwadi bandwagon. Akhilesh is already in talks of an alliance with his estranged uncle Shivapl Yadav's Pragatisheel Samjawadi Party-Lohia (PSP-L). The Aam Aadmi Party is also in touch with him.

If some more members of Bhagidari Morcha, which OP Rajbhar was heading before his alliance with the SP, also shake hands with Akhilesh Yadav, the SP chief will then have to increase the quota of seats for the allies.

As per SBSP insiders, Rajbhar alone has been demanding over 20 seats from Akhilesh. If other members of Bhagidari Sankalp Morcha join him, then the size of the seat share would stand around 35.However, senior SBSP leaders claim that seat sharing was not an issue. Members of Bhagidari Sankalp Morcah are ready to stand by the SP in the coming elections. However, the seat sharing is likely to be finalised by December-end," said a senior SBSP leader.

The SBSP opened its account in the 2017 polls when it contested eight seats spared by the BJP and had won four. On the contrary, in western UP, the Samajwadi Party is trying to buy time in sealing a deal with RLD.

RLD leaders preferring anonymity said that an alliance with SP is on. On seat sharing, they said the party chief had put up a demand for 50 seats while the SP was ready to offer 35 seats.

Moreover, the Samajwadis have doubts that the RLD may switch sides at the last moment. Sources said the BJP was also trying to woo the Jat party to minimise the damage due to the farmers' protest in the western belt.

However, according to RLD national secretary Anil Dubey, RLD and SP are in final stages of forging an alliance.

At the same time, though, Shivpal Yadav's party is yet to decide on either alliance or merger with the Samajwadi Party, sources in PSP-L say Shivpal wants 50 eats from nephew Akhilesh.

If the demands of the three major allies — SBSP along with members of Bhagidari Morcha, RLD and PSP-L — are added, it would make 135 seats. The Apna Dal (K) and Janwadi Socialist Party will also have their own ambitions and demands.

Additionally, in case of a pre-poll understanding between the SP and the Aam Aadmi Party, Samajwadis will have to accommodate the latter as well. The real challenge would emerge when the SP chief would be required to part with more than 135 seats to accommodate all the allies.

However, senior Samajwadi Party spokesperson Abdul Hafiz Gandhi discounted apprehensions, claiming that seat sharing would materialise with all the allies amicably.

Like farmers, need sacrifices to get back J&K rights: NC chief

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

NATIONAL Conference president and three-time former Jammu and Kashmir chief minister Farooq Abdullah on Sunday invoked farmers' agitation and said the J&K people may have to make sacrifices to get back their rights like the way farmers did.

"Seven hundred farmers lost their lives during the 11-month-long agitation against the farm laws. The Centre had to repeal the laws because of the sacrifices made by the farmers," Abdullah said while addressing party workers on the 116th birth anniversary of party founder and former J&K prime minister Sheikh Mohammad Abdullah at his mausoleum here.

He said the people of J&K too may have to make similar sacrifices to get their rights (referring to Articles 370 and 35A and statehood) back.

On August 5, 2019, the Centre scrapped Articles 370 and 35A that gave special status and privileges to J&K residents, and bifurcated the state into two UTs. "You should remember that we have promised that Articles 370 and 35A and statehood would be brought back. We will bring it back. We are ready to make any sacrifices to get them back. We should not be afraid of making any sacrifices," said Abdullah, the sitting MP from Srinagar.

'Where are the promised jobs?'

On Amit Shah's remarks that tourism increased in J&K, Abdullah asked where were the 50,000 jobs promised by him. The NC leader also alleged youth in J&K were being denied job opportunities

On Home Minister Amit Shah's remarks that tourism has increased in J&K post Article 370 abrogation, the NC president said, "As if tourism is everything. You had promised 50,000 jobs. Where have they gone? Instead you are terminating our people. Were there no people in J&K to be employed in J&K Bank that you brought people from Punjab and Haryana? Where will our boys and girls go? If we raise our voice, they are attempting to crush it."

COUNTER POINT

'Owaisi factor never worked in Bihar politics'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Patna

The leader of opposition in Bihar Assembly, Tejashwi Yadav, on Sunday denied that 'Owaisi factor' ever worked in Bihar and the Hyderabad MP's party — All India Majlis-e-Ittihadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) — had any significant role in the state.

Tejashwi was reacting to Asaduddin Owaisi's statement to a news channel that the RJD leader (read Tejashwi) would have been the Bihar CM had he or his party acted on his suggestion ahead of the Assembly polls in November 2020.

In an interview to a news channel, Tejashwi said, "I don't agree the Owaisi factor ever worked in Bihar. Neither his party has any role to play in state politics. I firmly believe that any such factor will not work in future in Bihar as well." "Nitish Kumar became CM after the results were announced, but it doesn't mean people liked him," he added.

Owaisi's AIMIM had contested the Assembly election solo and won five seats.

Two weeks before Kolkata polls, BJP hardly makes any noise

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

TWO weeks to go to the civic poll in Kolkata, the BJP's municipal election committee is hardly seen active while the Trinamool Congress is campaigning in full swing. Though the saffron camp's election committee was formed last month, it convened just once and was skipped by many members.

The BJP is scheduled to release its poll manifesto on December 8, but most of the committee members are in dark about the content of the promises that the party is going to make before the electorate of the state capital. Discontent over the manifesto has surfaced within the party.

"A campaign committee headed by Dinesh Trivedi, who defected from the TMC before the Assembly polls, was formed for preparing the content of the manifesto. Trivedi did not discuss the content with anyone in the committee. He prepared on his own and sent it to central observer Amit Malvya. If one person decided what would be the manifesto, why the committee was formed?" asked a member.

Sources in the saffron camp said grassroots-level workers of the party are sitting idle when only two weeks are left for the election. "This section of footsoldiers plays a crucial role in door-to-door campaign. Election committee's main work is engaging these footsoldiers but the committee is not seen playing active role when the TMC is holding meetings almost every day," said a senior BJP leader.

A member of the election committee said the leadership didn't seek explanation from those who had skipped the first meeting on November 28. "This shows the party's approach towards the upcoming poll. We see no sign of our leadership's come-back effort after the poor performance in the Assembly elections," he pointed out.

Collective leadership to fight Raj poll, says Shah in blow to Raje

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

IN a major jolt to former chief minister Vasundhra Raje in Rajasthan, Union home minister Amit Shah on Sunday told the state unit of the BJP that the next Assembly elections will be fought under collective leadership. In other words, there will be no chief ministerial face for the 2023 state elections.

Addressing the BJP's state working committee meeting, Shah asked the faction-ridden party to unitedly start preparations for Mission 2023 under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. His collective leadership pitch is being seen as a snub to the Raje camp.

When Raje's name was called to welcome Shah, he interrupted, asking how many times would he be greeted. As a result, Raje lost the photo-op, which became a talking point.

"No individual can be equal to an organisation. Everyone has to understand it," he underscored, which was seen as a barb at Raje. For quite some time now, her loyalists have been demanding that she be named the CM face.

The presence of Shah on the dais with leaders of all factions was a bid to show unity.

In two recent by-elections in Rajasthan, BJP candidates suffered crushing defeats. Raje became more active after that which widened the rift. Other than differences between the RSS camp of the party headed by state president Satish Punia and supporters of Raje, there are many contenders for the chief minister's post. With Assembly elections due after two years, Shah's visit was an exercise to unite the party factions and contain the discord.

Shah also asked the state unit to gear up for 2023. He claimed that BJP will form the next government in the state with a thumping majority. "This incompetent and corrupt Ashok Gehlot government has to be thrown out in the 2023 elections," said Shah.

In response to Gehlot's repeated remarks that BJP is trying to topple his government, Shah said BJP has no intention of bringing down the government because it will fall on its own. "Gehlot is always afraid that his government will fall. BJP will not topple his government, but form the government in 2023 with a thumping majority."

Liquor law: Bihar jails crowded

RAMASHANKAR MISHRA @ Patna

JAILS getting overcrowded is not new in Bihar. But a sudden surge in the number of prisoners in the last 15 days, especially after a high-level meeting chaired by Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on prohibition of liquor, has set alarm bells ringing at the prison directorate.

Rough data from the 59 jails across the state revealed that the number of prisoners has gone up to over 72,000 against a sanctioned capacity to accommodate 46,669 prisoners.

"There has been an increase of more than 10,000 prisoners in November. Of them, 8,000 were in the last 15 days. If the trend continues, it will be difficult to cope with the situation," a senior official said.

Beur central jail in Patna has at present 5,600 prisoners against a capacity of 2,360.

Jail superintendent Jitendra Kumar said the count was 5,400 before the review meeting on prohibition on November 16.

Prison officials attributed this to the CM's directive to go after the violators of the prohibition law and check illegal smuggling of liquor.

33L dormant Jan Dhan accounts in WB

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

WITH no transactions recorded in past one-and-a-half months, more than 33 lakh Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan yojona (PMJY) bank accounts in West Bengal, which is 8% of total such accounts in the state, have been lying dormant. Officials of the state finance department said none of these dormant accounts was credited with any subsidy deposited by the Centre, which shows the account holders did not even access schemes like PM Ujjwala Yojana that offers free LPG cylinders.

In Bengal, a total of 4,08,93,000 PMJY accounts have been opened and now 33.65 lakh accounts are inoperative.

Records available with the state government showed that 1.56 cylinders were procured per subscriber between April and June last year under the Ujjwala scheme, and the figure came down to 0.85 between January and March this year. Economists said a major chunk of Ujjwala subscribers could not even buy a single LPG cylinder under the scheme for underprivileged families.

"April to June last year saw highest LPG sales as the Centre offered more free cylinders because of the lockdown. However, after the facility was withdrawn the sales halved in the first three months of this year," said another official.

Virtual gaming arena opened in city centre

A first-of-its-kind e-sports gaming arena has come up on Maulana Azad Road in Lal Chowk. People of all ages can make use of the arena which is set up on 4,000 sq ft by young entrepreneurs Adnan Shah and Aqib Chaya. The arena offers 30 high-end gaming experiences on PC and Console and alternative experiences like bowling alley, arcade games, crazy waters, racing simulators, and 360 degree wireless virtual reality room. The two young entrepreneurs said that the 'eSports' gaming centre would help kids arrest boredom from closure of schools and take them away from excessive use of smart phones.

Three-yr jail to man for accident caused by minor son

A man was convicted and sentenced to three years of imprisonment by a court in Srinagar for an accident caused by his minor son. The Special Mobile Magistrate (Traffic) Srinagar invoked Section 199A Motor Vehicle Act, when the offence under the Act is committed by a juvenile, to jail father of the minor boy, who caused the accident. The man was awarded three years simple imprisonment and `25,000 fine. The court observed that underage-driving is one of the major causes danger to other motorists and pedestrians. The court further observed that parents and guardians are responsible for providing vehicles to their minor children while teachers and head of education institutes and coaching centres are responsible for allowing minor students to use the vehicle.

Man draws dead wife's pension, booked

The Crime Branch Kashmir has filed charge sheet against a man for illegally drawing the pension of his dead wife even after his re-marriage. As per Crime Branch Kashmir, during investigation, it was found that lawyer Omkar Singh in Baramulla had knowingly drawn an amount of `2.91 lakh as family pension in the name of deceased wife Naseeb Kour, even after his re-marriage. The investigation has revealed that the accused had married Naseeb Kour in 1984. Naseeb was working as headmistress at Government Higher Secondary School in Anantnag and died in 2003 as per the death certificate.

Myanmar Army truck runs down civilians, 3 killed

Activists allege security forces deliberately drove the vehicle into a crowd of protesters

YANGON

AN army vehicle barreled into a peaceful march of anti-government protesters in military-ruled Myanmar's biggest city on Sunday, reportedly killing at least three people, witnesses and a protest organizer said.

Sunday's march was one of at least three held in Yangon, and similar rallies were reported in other parts of the country a day ahead of an expected verdict in the first of about a dozen criminal cases against Myanmar civilian leader Aung San Suu Kyi, who was toppled in a military takeover February 1.

A video posted on social media showed a speeding small army truck heading into the marchers from behind. Voices can be heard, saying: "The car is coming ... Please help! It hit the children ... Oh! ... Dead! ... Run, ... run!" The video shows about a dozen people running from the spot.

A witness told The Associated Press that the protesters had been on his street for just two minutes when the military truck hit them, leaving three people without any sign of movement lying on the road.

"About five armed soldiers got out of the vehicle and chased after the protesters," said the witness, who insisted on anonymity for fear of arrest. "They opened fire and also arrested young people who had been hit by the car. At least 10 people were arrested."

Security forces have previously used cars to attack protesters since the army took power.

They have also freely used live ammunition, killing about 1,300 civilians, according to a detailed list compiled by the Assistance Association for Political Prisoners.

The use of lethal force by the army and police has led to less large-scale street protests, which have been replaced by small, quickly organised marches that usually break up at the first sight of the authorities.

Sunday's deaths in Yangon's Kyeemyindaing neighborhood could not be immediately confirmed. Another witness said that when several people came to gather their items, three more military vehicles arrived and arrested several of them.

Air defence test sparks loud blast near Iran nuclear site?

TEHRAN

AN air defence test triggered a loud explosion near Iran's Natanz uranium enrichment facility late on Saturday as nuclear talks with major powers stumble.

The explosion was heard in the skies over the Iranian city of Badroud, just 20 kilometres from the nuclear plant, the official IRNA news agency reported. "Badroud residents heard the noise and saw a light which showed an object had just blown up in the skies over the city," a witness told IRNA.

But the spokesman of the Iranian army, General Amir Tarikhani, told state television there was no cause for concern.

"An hour ago, one of our missile systems in the region was tested to assess the state of readiness on the ground, and there is nothing to fear," Tarikhani said.

However, soon after the blast reports emerged that the blast was the work of Israeli spy agency. Israel has not confirmed or denied its involvement. When asked about the blast, the country's deputy defence minister said, "We don't task a man what he did at night, but we are currently trying to bring about a change in the motivations of the whole world through diplomatic means."

He added that Iran is a problem for the whole world, and not just Israel.

Israel has said repeatedly that it stands ready to use all means, including force, to prevent Iran acquiring a nuclear weapons capability, and Iran has carried out periodic exercises to improve the defences around its nuclear sites.

Israel has been pushing hard for world powers to abandon talks with Iran on reviving a 2015 nuclear deal, which reopened in Vienna on Monday.

Western nations blasts Taliban for executing soldiers

WASHINGTON

THE United States on Saturday led a group of Western nations and allies in condemnation of the Taliban over the "summary killings" of former members of the Afghanistan security forces reported by human rights groups, demanding quick investigations.

"We are deeply concerned by reports of summary killings and enforced disappearances of former members of the Afghan security forces as documented by Human Rights Watch and others," read a statement by the United States, the European Union, Australia, Britain, Japan and others, which was released by the State Department.

"We underline that the alleged actions constitute serious human rights abuses and contradict the Taliban's announced amnesty," the group of nations said, as it called on Afghanistan's new rulers to ensure the amnesty is enforced and "upheld across the country and throughout their ranks."

Early this week Human Rights Watch released a report that it says documents the summary execution or enforced disappearance of 47 former members of the Afghan National Security Forces, other military personnel, police and intelligence agents "who had surrendered to or were apprehended by Taliban forces" from mid-August through October. AFP

CHINESE OPS NEAR TAIWAN LOOK LIKE REHEARSALS: PENTAGON

WASHINGTON

US Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin said on Saturday that recent extensive Chinese military operations near Taiwan resembled "rehearsals" and he reaffirmed Washington's strong support for Taipei.

President Joe Biden's Pentagon chief said the United States remained committed to supporting "Taiwan's ability to defend itself."

Lyod Austin

In a speech devoted largely to an array of challenges posed by an increasingly confident China, he underlined Washington's "real differences" with Beijing. Austin was speaking at a national defense forum at the Reagan Presidential Library in Simi Valley, California. In recent months, the Chinese military has mounted an increasingly aggressive series of sea and air military operations near Taiwan, which it claims as its own. "It looks a lot like them exploring their true capabilities," Austin said. "It looks a lot like rehearsals."

Some analysts have suggested Beijing may be testing Biden during his first year in office.

China was the only power now capable of using its "economic, diplomatic, military and technological power to mount a sustained challenge to a stable and open international system," Austin said.

The world's two largest economic powers, he went on, have "real differences both over interests and values. But the way that you manage them counts." He said Chinese leaders had been increasingly vocal about their "dissatisfaction with the prevailing order — and about their aim of displacing America from its global leadership role." But, Austin said: "We seek neither confrontation nor conflict.... We're not seeking a new Cold War or a world divided into rigid blocs."

In the face of the Chinese challenge, the retired four-star army general said, the US would be deepening its ties to friendly countries in the region, including through joint exercises.

"We remain steadfast to our One-China policy," Austin said, but also to "our commitments to support Taiwan's ability to defend itself ...". AFP

Espionage: Pakistan activist gets 14-yr jail

ISLAMABAD

A Pakistani rights and political activist has been convicted of espionage and sentenced to 14 years of rigorous imprisonment, according to a media report on Sunday.

The verdict on Idris Khattak was pronounced this week after the trial concluded in Jhelum.

"Khattak was found guilty of espionage and leaking of sensitive information by a Field General Court Martial (FGCM). He was handed down 14-year rigorous jail term," a security source was quoted as saying by the Dawn newspaper.

The source said he was tried under the Pakistan Army Act and Official Secrets Act, 1923. He was accused of providing the sensitive information to a foreign intelligence agency. Defending his court-martial, the source said any individual accused of espionage can be tried by a FGCM.

Khattak has reportedly been shifted to Jhelum district jail for serving the sentence. Khattak had investigated enforced disappearances in erstwhile tribal areas and Balochistan. He was travelling from Islamabad to Peshawar on November 13, 2019, when he was picked by an intelligence agency near Swabi interchange.

Now is a favourable time to invest in real estate, say experts

According to market watchers, the expected robust demand can deliver a noticeable return on investment in real estate as property prices are expected to go up

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

LOW interest rates and incentives offered by state governments & property developers have helped the Covid-hit real estate sector bounce back from lows of the first lockdown when quarterly sales (Q1FY22) had fallen by over 90% Year-on-Year.

As for the buyers who can afford it, the crisis became a good opportunity to upgrade into a bigger space or diversify their investment portfolio by buying real estate at much affordable prices.

With offers slowing down amidst growing demand, steep rise in raw material prices, and hike in interest rates around the corner, industry participants believe that current times are favourable to invest in residential properties.

"This is a good time to buy real estate, especially for end-users who are looking to buy their first home or looking to upgrade to a bigger home. Property prices are favourable, home loan interest rates are at decades low, plenty of options are there in both ready-to-move-in and under construction properties," said Saransh Trehan, Managing Director, Trehan Group.

Anuj Puri, Chairman of property consultant Anarock Group, also believes that this is indeed the right time to buy a property, particularly those looking for self-use because prevailing interest rates are at decadal low, affordability of homes is all-time best plus developers continue to dole out various offers and discounts on many of the residential projects. At present, most banks are offering home loans at a starting interest rate of 6.60-6.70%.

Price Hike is Inevitable

According to Puri, given the continuously rising input cost of basic raw materials like cement and steel, developers are now mulling to increase prices. Already in a few residential projects, prices have risen up to 10%, he adds. The Reserve Bank of India's recently released quarterly house price index (HPI), which is based on transaction-level data received from housing registration authorities in ten major cities, revealed that all-India HPI recorded 2.6% growth (y-o-y) in Q2:2021-22 as compared with 2% growth in the previous quarter.

Trehan says rising input costs are eating out developers' margins, which are already very thin. "In the last couple of years input costs have increased by almost 20% and developers unwillingly need to pass on the increase to homebuyers. An increase of 10-15% in property cost is inevitable," he added. According to industry participants, the cost of construction materials, especially cement and steel, has increased by 40-50% and are showing no signs of slowing down.

Puri adds that in the last one year (amid offers and discounts) many developers saw their stock getting cleared post housing demand surge during the pandemic, thus giving them the leverage to increase prices.

Demand to drive return

Property consultant CBRE's recent publication, India Market Monitor Q3 2021, highlighted that with a sustained attractive mortgage regime and government incentives, housing sales jumped nearly 46% Q-o-Q to 50,000 units in Q3 2021 and rebounded significantly by approximately 86% YoY on a year to date (YTD) basis. Hence, despite disruptions and market upheaval during the pandemic, the residential sector has shown resilience – with the outlook being bright.

According to market participants, the expected robust demand can deliver a noticeable return on investment in real estate as property prices are only expected to go up. Known for giving poor returns, this sector has remained a weak zone among investors for long.

Puri explains, "If we consider the present trends, for anyone who invests ₹1 crore in a prime location in any of the top cities may see at least avg. 25-30% overall return on investments in the next five year. The rate of return is likely to be more than 50% in 10 yrs. However, a lot depends on the type of property, its location, builder-type etc."

This return, however, is likely to be much lower than investment in blue chip stocks, another safe investment zone. In the current bull run, benchmark Indexes- Nifty and Sensex- have given a return of 29% in just one year!

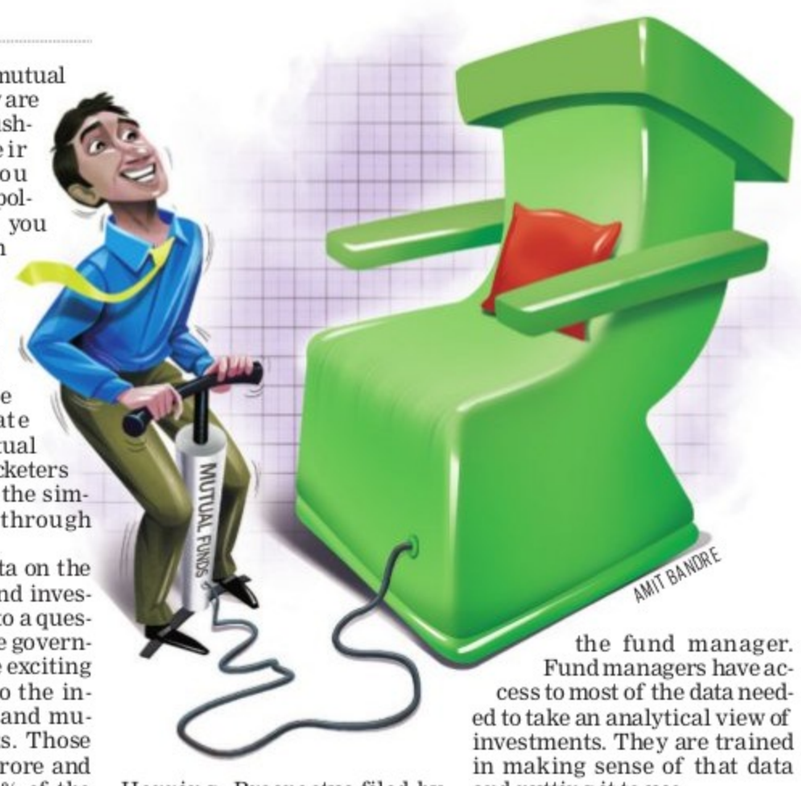
IT IS TIME TO EMBRACE MUTUAL FUNDS FOR FINANCIAL SECURITY

RAJAS KELKAR



THOSE in the mutual fund industry are constantly pushing for their cause. If you live in metropolitan regions, you are inundated with their messages to start a systematic investment plan. The Association of Mutual Funds in India or AMFI runs extensive campaigns to create awareness about mutual funds. Well-known cricketers are trying to explain the simplicity of investing through mutual funds.

There is a lot of data on the number of mutual fund investors in India. In reply to a question in Parliament, the government has put out some exciting information linked to the income of individuals and mutual fund investments. Those earning between ₹1 crore and ₹5 crore own about 31% of the total assets under management. Those earning ₹1 to ₹5 lakh per annum own mutual fund assets that account for 24% of the total assets managed by the industry. The next category is one earning between ₹5 and ₹10 lakh per annum at 19%.

Individuals earning between ₹1 lakh and ₹10 lakh own 41% of the assets managed by the mutual fund industry. High-income people still own a sizable majority of assets. While there is significant progress made in non-metro towns, a vast majority of India stays out of the world of investments. Only 1.85 crore individuals are investing through mutual funds. That is just about 1.5% of the country's population. Overall mutual fund assets to Gross Domestic Product in India is 16%. Pundits say that the number can double by 2026. In America, the value of mutual fund assets is 145% to that of the GDP.

There are new enablers in India, though. About 55-65% of new purchases of mutual fund units are through digital channels, according to the Draft Red Herring Prospectus filed by One97 Communications earlier this year. This company owns Paytm, the payment gateway. According to the government data released in the Parliament, the number of Jan Dhan accounts stands at 43.85 crore as of 10 November.

Over the past two years, many of you have decided to respond to the campaigns. You have either made a lump sum investment or signed up for a SIP. A lot of you have signed up for demat accounts and have directly bought shares too. If you are new to the world of investing, it is important to let professionals guide you towards wealth creation. The fact that you have managed to invest means you have done the hard work of creating a monthly surplus. You have learnt an essential lesson of keeping expenses lower than your income. Unless you do that consistently, investments make no sense.

Mutual funds are a proven way to save and invest regularly. When you invest through mutual funds, you transfer the risk of deciding the timing to the fund manager. Fund managers have access to most of the data needed to take an analytical view of investments. They are trained in making sense of that data and putting it to use.

Your abilities with risk

Mutual funds have to tell you that your investment is subject to market risk. They are bound by the rules set by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) that do not allow them to promise any returns. In the past, mutual funds used to offer guaranteed return schemes. However, that was against the standard market practices around the world. Mutual Funds should never offer any assured returns. They are not 'defined benefit' schemes. They are supposed to perform in line with the markets or outperform them. You need to invest through mutual funds that show consistency in performance. Once you get past that, it is all about your ability to take the risk in the market. That depends entirely on your future income. If you are confident about your future income, mutual funds are a wonderful way to channelise your savings towards future wealth.

PANKAJ CHOPRA

JUST as the Global and Indian economy were finding their feet and people started to move out cautiously, we now have a whole new scare related to the Coronavirus pandemic. Governments are imposing restrictions again and everyone is worried.

Viruses mutate all the time, which is why people catch 'the flu' every year despite the fact that recovering from a particular strain builds antibodies (which is true for Coronavirus too). Every time the virus is transmitted to a new host, it has the possibility of mutating. With a raging pandemic and millions of people being infected around the Globe, the opportunity to mutate has been so many more this time.

Most virus mutuations are insignificant and do not alter the transmitting ability. However, once in a while the mutation is significant enough to change all that. This happened with the Delta variant and is expected to happen with the Omicron variant. What matters now is the response to the virus. For markets, these ups and downs and the uncertainty is nothing new. Multiple positive and negative factors keep taking the markets up and down in waves, similar to the waves we are seeing of the pandemic. This kind of risk is more accounted for in the stock markets than in real life. Investors in the markets have learnt to deal with it. We now have to learn to live with it.

I remember 20 years back, post the IT bust in Y2K (year 2000), the BSE Sensex was trading at about 3,000 and falling rapidly every day, about 100 points. A colleague at work commented saying if the markets keep falling like this, they will be at Zero in one month's time. Fortunately, that did not happen and the markets are 20x in 20 years from there.

However, the point is we tend to think in straight lines while extrapolating while markets (and life) move in cycles. When things are going bad we start fearing the worst and when all is hunky dory, we start painting blue sky estimates. Markets reflect the same fear and euphoria at various points in time and therefore get overvalued in bull runs and undervalued during bear times. However, there are limits to this and these are set by the fact that valuations like the Price to Earnings multiple (P/E) cannot go to infinity and can neither fall to zero.

As Benjamin Graham once said 'In the short run the markets are a voting machine but in the long run they are a weighing machine'. Thus, if you wait long enough the valuation of a good company will bounce back after a fall.

Eventually, these ups and downs will even out and hopefully the pandemic will become endemic. In the interim, keep a keen eye on the fundamentals and if you do find good companies trading cheap due to a gloomy overall outlook, take a longer term view and seriously consider investing during such challenging times.

RBI likely to keep key policy rate unchanged

MUMBAI: Amid global scare due to Omicron, the RBI is likely to maintain status quo in its upcoming monetary policy and wait for a more opportune time to calibrate benchmark interest rate to promote growth without sacrificing the main objective of containing inflation. The Reserve Bank Governor-headed Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) is scheduled to meet during December 6-8, 2021.

LIC improves asset quality ahead of IPO

NEW DELHI: Ahead of its proposed initial public offering, LIC has improved its asset quality for the financial year ended March 2021. The non-performing assets (NPAs) as of March 31, 2021, are ₹35,129.89 crore out of a total portfolio of ₹4,51,303.30 crore, according to the latest Annual Report of LIC. The sub-standard assets are ₹254.37 crore whereas the doubtful assets are ₹20,369.17 crore.

Tata's chip making plan may hit walls on shortage

Guwahati/Kolkata: The Tata Groups' reported plans to set up a USD 300-million semiconductor manufacturing facility on a wartime basis is likely to face some headwinds given the absence of raw materials in the country and its scarce availability outside due to the ongoing shortage globally since the pandemic, says a report. The pandemic and its after effects on increased demand for data and consumer electronics have left semiconductor makers unable to keep up with supplies. Adding to the pains are the extreme weather and natural disasters in many producing countries.

MONEY-WISE

MISTAKES ADVISORS ARE LIKELY TO MAKE

CLIENT interaction and client education is a year-long, or rather, a life-long activity. However, when the markets are good, advisors tend to think that the client will do all the learning himself or herself.

The clients get over-confident of their own skills. Sometimes they accept the role of the advisor, sometimes they think "we did it ourselves".

December is a good time for introspection - January is a good time for resolution. This is also a time when there is a huge temptation to invest in Bitcoins and such other assets which are not well understood, and more importantly, not regulated at all.

Let us see what mistakes advisors are likely to make and what we should avoid.

Possible mistakes

- Telling the client 'I got you 37% return in 2021'.
- Suggesting they have reached the absolute amount target for 2027 already, so let the money remain in equity
- Suggesting that increasing the target amount for 2021 based on the current CAGR
- Saying even if it is a little lower, 2022 also looks promising, so you can expect 20% if not 27% return
- Taking sectoral calls - pharma and IT are the tempting ones I hear?
- Encouraging client committing more to equity seeing the 2021 numbers

What you should do

- Explain that 2017, 2021 were an aberration.
- Explain that 2020 and 2021 reported CAGR will be even higher - remember 2008 has been dropped!
- Explain 3 year and 5 year rolling average and not just CAGR
- Use the excess return of 2021 to invest in debt funds especially for targets which are in 2025-2027
- Explain that the returns were gained by the market, not by you or by the client. Luck, not skill
- Admit that you do not know what 2022 will do
- Do not assume that Estate duty will NEVER come back
- Remember Capital Gains Tax has come back - and STT has not been removed.
- Do not take sectoral calls - stick to asset allocation as per client's needs, NOT as per market performance
- Clients may or may not accept that returns are not because of their own skill - say it gracefully
- Stay away from Bitcoins and its ilk. Clients should be clearly focused on the Training program, learning, and then decide not to invest in new asset classes!
- Explain the concept of Asset Allocation - via other assets, real estate, etc.

Understanding (and accepting) that the returns were not because of the client's skill is really tough, but it has to be said nicely.

Over four lakh income tax returns filed daily as deadline nears

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@ New Delhi

AS the income tax return filing deadline is getting closer, the e-filing website of the Income Tax department is seeing over 4 lakh returns being filed every day, and the number is increasing every passing day.

The income tax department in a statement on Sunday said that more than 3 crore income tax returns (ITRs) have now been filed on the new e-Filing portal as on 3 December 2021.

The department has advised all taxpayers, who are yet to file their Income Tax returns for assessment year (AY) 2021-22 to file their returns at the earliest to avoid last minute rush. It has also exhorted the filers to view their Form 26AS and Annual Information Statement (AIS) through the e-filing portal to verify the accuracy of the TDS and Tax Payments and avail of pre-filling of ITRs. "It is important for taxpayers to cross check the data in the AIS statement with their Bank passbook, interest certificate, Form 16 and Capital gains statement from brokerages in case of purchase and sale of equity/Mutual funds etc," said the statement from the tax department.

According to the I-T department, return filing has increased to 3.03 crore ITRs for assessment year 2021-22. Of the 3 crore returns files so far, 58.98% of these are ITR1 (1.78 crore), 8% is ITR2 (24.42 lakh), 8.7% is ITR3 (26.58 lakh), 23.12% are ITR4 (70.07 lakh), ITR5 (2.14 lakh), ITR6 (0.91 lakh) and ITR7 (0.15 lakh). Over 52% of these ITRs are filed using the online ITR form on the portal and the balance are uploaded using the ITR created from the offline software utilities.

TR 1 is filed by individuals with income from salary/pension, one house property and other incomes. ITR 4 is for individuals who have income from business or profession. ITR 2 is for individuals who have income from salary/pension, capital gains and foreign assets while ITR 3 is for individuals with income from business/profession and as a partner in a firm. ITR 5,6 and 7 are for firms and corporates.

In November, 48% of the verified ITRs 1, 2 and 4 had been processed on the same day. Of the verified ITRs, more than 2.11 crore have been processed and over 82.80 lakh refunds for AY 2021-22 have been issued. Around 2.69 crore returns have been e-verified, out of which more than 2.28 crore are through Aadhaar based OTP.

The government had extended the deadline – which normally is 31 July – for filing of returns several times, earlier due to Covid-19 and later due to technical glitches in the new e-filing portal.

World Tour Finals: Sindhu finishes with silver medal

Indian badminton ace PV Sindhu finished with a silver medal at the BWF World Tour Finals after going down meekly against Korean teen sensation An Seyoung in the summit clash, on Sunday. Sindhu could neither match the pace nor breach the defence of the world number six Korean, losing 16-21, 12-21 in the 40-minute lop-sided clash.

India players celebrate the wicket of William Young of New Zealand on Day 3 of the 2nd Test at the Wankhede Stadium | AP

DEATH BY A THOUSAND CUTS

Spinners lead the charge as India five wicket away from series win

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

DAY three in Test cricket are the moving days. At the Wankhede Stadium, the writing was on the wall even before the play began on Sunday. India were only going to make it a slow death for New Zealand for the 332-run lead at the end of Day 2 was more than enough to force a win. Still, India had a lot to look forward to, especially in the batting front. No matter how good a batter is, nothing gives them more confidence than runs next to their name. And it is what India would have preferred too ahead of the South Africa tour, where Virat Kohli & Co are seeking a first-ever series win.

Test cricket rarely gives opportunities like this. With the result almost a foregone conclusion, this was one of the days where batters — read Cheteshwar Pujara — had all the time in the world to find some confidence-finding runs, one that could help save the spot. Truth to be told, there is no immediate threat to his place because India are not keen on having two inexperienced batters in the middle-order of all places in South Africa, where even the best need time to get used to the bounce. That said, it also allows the team management an opportunity to even bring back Ajinkya Rahane, who despite all the struggles, has looked the better bat between the two and is missing this Test only because he is 'injured.' So was it for Kohli, who is searching for his first international century since November 2019, but definitely far from being put in the 'out of form' category.

So for Pujara, who walked in as opener since Shubman Gill couldn't bat on Day 2 because of injury and already had 29 to his name, Sunday was ideal in terms of what he needed. Sure, the pitch was taking turn. But there were runs for the taking too, provided he negated the threat that Ajaz Patel would bring. And the manner in which he started the day had all the makings of what you call a typical Pujara inning, where he holds fort and once settled, would be hard to dislodge. He wasted no time in using the feet against Ajaz and started off with successive boundaries. And there were two more attacking shots, the ones that one can usually expect from Pujara whenever spinners err in length. Yet, the innings didn't last long as Ajaz found his outside edge to cut short Pujara's innings for 47.

That India were in no mood to rush despite the lead swelling beyond 400 said a story or two. After Pujara, it was the turn of Kohli to get some valuable runs on board. While the Indian captain went about it patiently, he could only manage 36 before playing one from Rachin Ravindra onto the stumps. Around them the likes of Shubman Gill, Shreyas Iyer, Axar Patel all played cameos before India declared at 276/7, setting New Zealand a target of 540.

"I won't call it a delay as there is so much time left in the game. The idea was to bat as long as possible as this kind of a situation, you don't get every day, so the plan was to make the most of it. We were trying to explore variation options and check out. What if we have to chase on this kind of a track on the last day, trying to express ourselves in a different situation," Axar said of India's plan for the day.

And chasing an improbable total, New Zealand's task was always going to be daunting on a pitch that was only going to assist the spinners. At stumps on Day 3, the Black Caps had half the side back in the pavilion and have only 140 on board as India look set to take the series on Monday.

Not the end of the world

Their players were locked in their homes for over a year because of lockdown in Argentina. That, however, did not prevent the South Americans from emerging triumphant at the junior World Cup, prevailing over Germany in a heart-stopping match that was settled only in the final minute. This win is also welcome for them as they transition towards a more youthful side post Tokyo. Their march towards the final was one of the subplots of the World Cup that had a fair few. A look at a few of them.

ASIAN TEAMS NEED AN SOS

They are considered as the spiritual home of the sport. On the turf, though, this was another tournament that kind of maintained the status quo: they are nowhere near good enough at this level. Some of the numbers that emerged out of this tournament make for painful reading. South Africa's alarmingly easy 4-0 win over South Korea, whose seniors won a silver at the Olympics, is from another time period. The likes of Malaysia and Pakistan continue to flounder. Remove India and the three other Asian teams put together won just eight games out of 18 matches. The teams in the region will need a hard reset or India will continue to fly the flag for the continent going forward.

FINALISTS WELL PLACED

Both Germany and Argentina have punched below their weight in recent times. After the Olympic bronze for the former and the gold for the latter (both in 2016), they have been on a drought. This tournament, though, will convince them that will end sooner rather than later. Luckily, considering both senior teams have had retirements post the Olympics, the ones who shone brightest in Bhubaneswar would potentially become part of the senior setups. For Argentina, Lautaro Domene, who struck a hat-trick of penalty corners in the final, he may receive a call up sooner. Lucas Rey, who skippered the senior team to gold in 2016, is now a title winning coach with the juniors. For Germany, this is a nice first step towards replacing legends like Tobias Hauke and Florian Fuchs.

With loss to France, India miss out on podium finish

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Bhubaneswar

France clinched bronze medal after defeating India in Bhubaneswar Sunday | IRFANA

INDIA'S tournament ended with the way it began: a defeat to France. There weren't many similarities between the two defeats, though. The opener was an often chaotic match that could have gone any way. The fate of Sunday's bronze-medal match, though, was fairly clear even before the hooter cut through the chilly December air to signal the end of the first quarter. An enterprising France were already all over the hosts like a rash. If Germany outdid Vivek Sagar Prasad & Co with their intensity and physicality, France simply beat them by being better in all phases of play and all areas of the pitch. They reacted quicker to opportunities, were alive to situations and, in the end, bossed India. It, however, has to be said that the Boys in Blue didn't do much to counter that.

In age-group sport, it's all about identifying weaknesses and learning from mistakes. Even if this is a good batch of players — several of them could be fast-tracked into the senior set-up before the World Cup in January 2023 — what will be concerning is how off the pace they have looked against Belgium (only a defensive masterclass prevented them from winning that game), Germany and, now, France. Sure, a lack of match-practice cost them dearly but they looked limp.

RESULT FRANCE 3-1 INDIA

Disappointing forward line

There was no real urgency in midfield and both the defense and the forward line let themselves down by some poor decision-making. The goalkeeper did pull off some smart saves but the first rusher didn't do his job all that well. As a result, France were able to chalk up as many as 14 short corners. The midfield didn't really carry the ball all that well and the forwards again let themselves down. Sometimes, the best thing for an attacker to do is look for an opposition foot and take a penalty corner. That line of thinking hasn't been aligned with what the Indian attackers have tried to do. And that's even more ironic considering the penalty corner battery they have at their disposal.

On the few occasions when India managed to enter the striking circle, they opted to try to dribble their way past traffic to engineer shooting opportunities. Chief coach Graham Reid specifically addressed this issue after the game against Germany but the players didn't learn from that experience. Numbers will illustrate this problem better: in the last three games, India have had five penalty corners from 58 circle penetrations. In the same three games, their opponents have had 21 corners from 76 penetrations. To rub salt into the wounds, the forwards were tackled cleanly or lost possession before getting their shot away. In all the three knockout games, they have had only 15 shots on goal. To put that into context, France themselves had 15 while Germany had 14 and Belgium managed 11.

That has kind of been one of biggest issues for the hosts during the World Cup itself; attackers taking an extra touch or hanging onto the ball for an extra second to keep looking for extra options. At this level, that's asking for trouble.

FRANCE ARE THE REAL DEAL

When they sauntered into the quarterfinals of the 2018 World Cup, there were suggestions that the Olympics was behind their rise. Well, you need not be in any doubt now. The only team to not trail during regulation time in any of the matches walked back with a bronze medal. The celebrations post their win over India on Sunday spoke volumes about how much it meant to them. They are an all-around solid outfit and one can imagine a few from this bunch graduating to the seniors rather quickly. Captain Timothee Clement played in 2018 and he could be one of the stars of the Olympics in his home land.

ELITE HOCKEY IS IN SAFE HANDS

If the bottom eight here weren't good enough, the top eight teams more than made up for that. Without Australia, England and New Zealand, this competition was poorer. Saying that, that just suggests that the top-tier of elite hockey is in safe hands. Any of the top eight-10 countries can win the medals and it wouldn't be a genuine surprise. Spain faced Belgium in a fifth against eight place classification match but both teams had the quality to compete in a final. With France quickly eating ground, this group is only set to grow.

1 India's win over Belgium was Asia's only win in the quarterfinals and beyond.

Sunday's results

- 7-8th place Spain 4-1 Malaysia
- 5-6th place Belgium 4-6 Netherlands
- Bronze medal match France 3-1 India
- Final Germany 2-4 Argentina

2 Win over six-time champs Germany gave Argentina their 2nd Junior Men's Hockey World Cup title.

ALL-ROUND RANA, MEGHANA'S HUNDRED MAKE HEADLINES

ENS @Chennai

S MEGHANA and Pooja Vastrakar stole headlines yet again in the Women's Senior Challenger Trophy as India D registered their second win in Vijayawada on Sunday. Batting first, Meghana smashed a 86-ball 102 against India B, and with ample support from Ayushi Soni, she took her team to 186/5 in 35.3 overs but they were bundled out for 230 in the penultimate over. In reply, India B started well with Harleen Deol scoring a half-century. However, Vastrakar turned things around with a three-fer and a crucial run out as India B fell short by 46 runs.

In another match, Renuka Thakur and Simran Dil Bahadur had a field day as India A reduced India C to 41/6 in 16.1 overs. Radha Yadav and C Prathyusha played a rescue act, adding 139 runs for the seventh wicket. India A skipper Sneh Rana took three wickets as India C was all out for 205. In response, Disha Kasat and Rana scored half-centuries, taking India A across the line.

K'taka Police off to winning start

BENGALURU : Hosts Karnataka Police got off to an impressive start here at the ongoing All India Police Hockey Championship on Sunday. Led by NB Pradeep, who scored a wonderful hat-trick, Karnataka Police defeated the formidable Haryana Police 5-3 in a thrilling pool D encounter. Rajeshekhar Shivanagutti and Paramesh scored one each for Karmnataka too.

Pranjala clinches her fourth ITF title in style

ENS @Bengaluru

PRANJALA Yadlapalli came up with a solid display to beat Sowjanya Bavisetti 7-5, 6-2 to clinch the KSLTA ITF World Tour Championships title at the KSLTA Stadium here on Sunday. It was her fourth ITF title, the last one being three years ago in Lagos. Sowjanya, who had defeated top seed Rutuja Bhosale and Korean So-Ra Lee in her last two matches, could not bring her A game in the title decider.

Though Pranjala won the final in straight sets, the first one was a close affair. In fact, she was trailing 3-5, and that is when she came all guns blazing to win the next four games to win it 7-5. With the 22-year-old high on confidence, she clinch ed the second set with some powerful baseline shots to win it 6-2.

Pranjala Yadlapalli

This is a welcome win for the tennis player, who had been troubled with back injuries in the past. This competition in Bengaluru was her fourth of the year after featuring in three events in the US recently.

"I am really happy with the win because it has been three years with injuries, Covid and everything. This is my fourth tournament... I played three tournament in the US and now here winning this in India means a lot. I also played some long matches here in the quarterfinal and semifinal, so winning back to back, winning the title, I feel great," said Pranjala.

However, Sowjanya is not returning empty handed from the city. Besides her runners-up finish in the singles, she teamed up with Rutuja to win the doubles title on Saturday.

Family of rowers seeks new high at Asian C'ships in Thailand

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

TERMING them a family of rowers will not be an exaggeration. This family of four will be in focus once again when the 2021 Asian Rowing Championships begins in Thailand on December 9 giving two of its members — Parminder Singh and Avinash Kaur — an opportunity to make their international debut. The duo had earlier competed at the indoor international rowing events and pocketed medals as well.

Father Inderpal Singh, India's first rowing Olympian (2000 Sydney Games), will witness the moment from sidelines as he would be with the team as a coach. Mother Sukhjinder Kaur, who had also won medals in the amateur international regatta, however, will keep herself updated with the children's progress back home at Bilaspur (Haryana).

Parminder (L) with sister Avinash

"We discuss rowing even at the dinner table," 21-year-old Parminder told this daily from Pune where he is camping with the Indian team.

The Indian contingent comprising 24 members (10 men and 6 women rowers) will take part in the championships. The first batch consisting of 11 members including Avinash and Inderpal have reached the venue while the remaining rowers and support staff are scheduled to fly out on Tuesday. Parminder competes in single sculls while Avinash's event is quadruple sculls.

Despite his father being a rower, Parminder didn't take up the sport professionally till 2018. He though was learning the skills but the objective behind it was to keep his weight his check which was around 116-117 kgs three years ago. "The medals our rowers won in the 2018 Asian Games inspired me to take up the sport professionally. Even my father was surprised when I told him about it. Then I won medals and created an Asian record at the 2019 Asian Indoor Championship which gave me recognition. Soon after I was selected for the national camp," informed the rower.

He might have found a place in the camp but Parminder was nowhere close to other rowers given his fitness. It was the first lockdown in March 2020, which gave him an opportunity to work on his endurance and fitness and return stronger. "We came back home during the first lockdown. I worked hard on my fitness then by doing weight training, running regularly and following a proper diet chart advised by a nutritionist. I lost around 20 kgs in two months and when I returned to the camp I started finishing second among eight or nine campers," added Parminder.

While Parminder was in Pune, sister Avinash and father Inderpal were with the women's team at SAI centre in Jagatpur, Odisha. "Every day I used to speak to my father and give him updates." Parminder, who has been camping for the past two years, hopes his first international event will help him assess his progress, which in turn will keep him in a good stead for the upcoming events.

Big Leap for Tribal Community In MP

On the occasion of Kranti Surya Jannayak Tantya Mama's martyrdom day, Governor Shri Mangubhai Patel and Chief Minister Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan visited a photo exhibition at Nehru Stadium in Indore.

The original photograph of Tantya Mama when he was arrested and transported to Jabalpur Jail is also on display in the photo exhibition. A photograph of Tantya Mama wearing shackles on her feet is also included in the exhibition. The Bhil custom is explained in the Devasthan, which is located in Kishanji's home in his native hamlet of GarhiKothda. There are also photographs of the original portrait of Nathu Singh, Tantya maternal uncle's grandson and Kishan Ji's son, the dargah of Peer in the hamlet of Kothda, and the Central Jail in Jabalpur, which was built in 1874. Tantya Mama was hung here on the 4th of December 1889.

There are images of Tantya Mama and her companions in this photo exhibition, which were seized from them when they were caught; these arrow bows are now secure in the Museum of London. Tantya Mama was reffered "Indian Robin Hood" by an English journalist in a news piece published in The New York Times on November 10, 1889.

Dr. Narottam Mishra, Home Minister and Indore district in-charge and Water Resources Minister Mr. Tulsiram Silawat, Tribal Affairs Department Minister Ms. Meena Singh, Forest Minister Mr. Vijay Shah, Culture Minister Ms. Usha Thakur, MP Mr. Shankar Lalwani were present on this occasion.

The Revolutionary Mass Leader
Tantya Mama

Tantya Mama was one of the most popular leaders among these tribal mass leaders for his bravery. Tantya Mama was born around 1842. At the very young age of 16 years, he became a revolutionary. He was brother for thousands of sisters and "Mama" for youngsters. People used to call him "Mama" for help. He also provided shelters and protection for other hundreds of freedom fighters and revolutionary leaders in the jungle.

He met with the great revolutionary leader of Revolution, Tatya Tope on 15 September 1857. He took training of Gurilla War from Tatya Tope. The only purpose of Tantya's life was to punish the exploiters and ensure the rights of the poor.

It wasn't easy task to catch, the hero of the Madhya Pradesh and Gujarat situated on the bank of Narmada and the ideal of the Bheels of Jhabua West. At last, Britishers used cheating and deceit and Mansingh wrote a history of treachery. On 4th December 1889, Tantya Mama, the messiah of poor and exploited, cloyer of the exploiters, he gave supreme sacrifice and was hanged by the Britishers.

Grammy winner Ricky Kej, who has been nominated for a second Grammy, speaks to CE about his first Tamil project Kaadu, an anthem to celebrate forests

SANATH PRASAD

A BLEND of rap, Tamil folk, Marathi percussion and electronica — the result is an eclectic musical product, Kaadu (which means forest), that aims to advocate the need of conserving forests. Conceptualised by Grammy winner Ricky Kej, the new music video stars Kannada singer and composer Charan Raj, popular Tamil rapper Arivu from the Enjoy Enjaami fame, flautist Rasika Shekar, percussionist Darshan Doshi among others.

The project was a part of music composers Salim and Sulaiman Merchant's Bhoomi 21, with '21' denoting the year 2021. Kej, who is active in musical projects centred around environmentalism, felt Kaadu was a one-of-its-kind project that saw a combination of different music formats to highlight the need to conserve forests. "This is my first Tamil project and something that was out of my comfort zone as well. When Salim-Sulaiman came up with Bhoomi 21, Salim gave me a blank slate and asked me to work on a song. That is when I collated the ensemble of musicians who could bring in a mix of Tamil folk, electronica, rap, and also the folk Marathi percussion onto the music scene," says Kej, who conceptualised the music video in April 2021.

According to Kej, this Tamil song also underlines that people are not thinking of long-term sustainable goals to preserve the forests. "Many still feel that we can destroy and exploit the resources of the forests. The song also talks about the hypocrisy of mankind where one knows that forests need to be protected but yet we are doing nothing about it. The anthem does not add any negative connotation to it. It's a celebration of nature and our forests," says Kej.

Interestingly, Kej is also in the race for yet another Grammy award for his music album series, Divine Tides, which was in collaboration with American drummer Stewart Copeland. The second nomination for the Grammy's comes seven years after his first Grammy award which he won in 2014 for his musical album, Winds of Samsara. About the nomination, Kej says, "Divine Tides is an album very special to me because I got to collaborate with my childhood idol Stewart Copeland. The music also has been very close to my heart because it was created during the lockdown when I was just confined to my home. I would consider this music to be my best work to date."

'My only wish is for an optimistic 2022'

...says actor Karisma Kapoor, who was in Bengaluru recently for the launch of a diamond brand

SANATH PRASAD

THERE'S a flurry of activity in JP Nagar on a weekday afternoon when Bollywood actor Karisma Kapoor is expected in the city. She's here to launch the second store of the De Beers Forevermark Boutique in Bengaluru. Dressed in a black off-shoulder dress, Kapoor is frazzled by the goings-on. Once things settle, Kapoor does a store tour, viewing some diamonds through a jewellery magnifier. At the same time she recalls her first-ever purchase of the precious stone.

"Like every girl, diamonds are my best friends too. The little solitaire I bought for the first time with my own money still makes me so proud," says Kapoor.

The exclusive boutique store in south Bengaluru is in collaboration with Abaran Timeless Jewellery, and includes a rare collection of diamonds in traditional and contemporary settings. At the launch, the actor was also given a collection of diamonds to choose from for different occasions, as part of a fun and interactive activity. She picked a diamond-studded necklace which is suitable for a brunch meet or a film award ceremony. When asked to pick something for festive occasions, she chose to wear 'diamond kangans' which is part of a collection themed on the 'circle of trust', signifying the traditions and cultures of India.

Speaking to CE, Kapoor says that diamonds are more like an identity to women than just a mere fashion statement. "Diamonds are like an heirloom piece, something that can be passed on for generations to come," says the actor, who is known for movies such as Dil To Pagal Hai and Coolie No. 1.

About Bengaluru, Kapoor says, "It's always a pleasure to be in this green city amidst great weather. I am a big fan of the south Indian thali which I definitely don't want to miss when I am here." Sharing her New Year resolution for 2022, Kapoor says, "More than just a resolution, my wish is that we have a more positive and optimistic year ahead, especially since the last couple of years have been trying."

FIT BIT

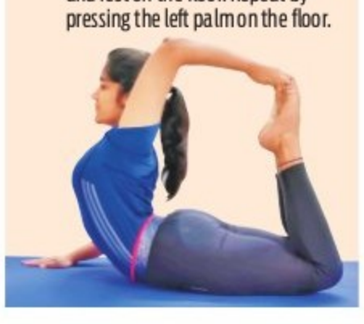
EKA HASTA DWI PADA PADANGUSHTA DHANURASANA

(ONE HAND BOTH FEET BIG TOE BOW POSE)

This is an advanced backbend that is part of the fourth series of Ashtanga yoga. In addition to opening the chest, strengthening the spine and stretching the entire front body, this invigorating pose reduces stress and anxiety, and stimulates the mind. Like the basic bow pose, this opens both the Chakras – Anahata (heart) and Vishudha (throat). It also develops focus and reaches the Muladhara (root) Chakra through Swadhisthana (Sacral) Chakra.

STEPS

- Lie flat on your stomach. Bend the elbows and place the palms on the floor on the side of the chest.
- Exhale, lift the head and trunk up, by stretching the arms fully, without moving the pelvic region and the legs. Breathe here normally for a few seconds.
- Exhale, bend the knees and lift the feet up. The weight of the body will be felt on the pelvic region, thighs and hands.
- With more pressure on the right palm, lift the left hand off the floor and over the head, grabbing onto the toes of the feet.
- Stretch the legs straight without loosening the grip on the knees, toes towards the sky. Gradually try to bring the upper body back as much as possible.
- Contract the anus, tighten the thighs and hold the pose for about 15 to 20 seconds. As the spine, chest and shoulders are fully extended while the abdomen is contracted, breathing is fast.
- Release your legs one by one and rest on the floor. Repeat by pressing the left palm on the floor.



BENEFITS

- Here, the sacroiliac, lumbar and dorsal regions of the spine benefit along with the neck and shoulder muscles which are fully stretched.
- Helps for more blood circulation in the pubic region.
- The thyroids, parathyroids, adrenals and gonads receive a copious supply of blood.
- Stretches chest and lungs, shoulders, and abdomen.
- Relieves stress and fatigue; and opens the heart and lungs.
- It soothes sciatica and is therapeutic for asthma.
- The male and female reproductive system improves.
- Irregular menstrual cycle is rectified too.

LIMITATIONS

- Those with severe back problems relating to the spine, neck, spondylitis and asthma, should avoid this.
- People suffering from stomach disorders like ulcers should ensure proper guidance from a yoga expert.
- Pregnant women should avoid this pose.

GREEN TOUCH

In recent times, Bengaluru is witnessing a rise in the plant-based dining scene

ASLAM GAFOOR

(The writer is a Bengaluru-based hospitality professional, food lover and travel enthusiast)

An increasing number of restaurants in namma Bengaluru offer delicious plant-based vegan dining options for non-meat eaters. Earlier, vegan options have meant eating salads, beans, and a medley of vegetables prepared without much creativity. All this has changed in recent times with chefs preparing delicious dishes with mindfully-sourced ingredients that enhance flavours, add layers to the food, and provide a holistic culinary experience.

Established in 2017, Justbe Cafe in Sadashivnagar is hugely popular with regulars for food that is free of oil, meat, dairy, refined flour, and synthetic additives. Founder Nidhi Nahata's restaurant journey was driven by her own food and health choices. The soothing atmosphere at Justbe Cafe aptly complements the menu filled with superfood bowls, gourmet toasts, home-style curries, guilt-free desserts and refreshing beverages. The Jian Bowl comes loaded with steamed silken tofu, while the Ghani Khamma is a complete meal with bajra khichda, besan wali mangodi, pyaz ka achar, lasan ki chutney, ragi khichiya and gud. Nahata explains, "The ingredients used in the kitchen are meant to awaken our instincts which assist in building the immune system and forge a deeper relationship with food."

New York-inspired, The Pet People Cafe in HSR Layout offers a dining experience that showcases sustainability, well-being and a healthy lifestyle. Chef Abhijit Saha's plant-forward menu comprises nutrient-rich produce such as hemp, avocado, nut milk, seeds, berries and hydroponics. Here you will find Bagels stuffed with vegan cheese, Kale and Chickpea Salad, Mushroom and Truffle Oil Flatbread Pizza, gluten-free Quinoa Pasta, Korean Bibimbap, Mee Goreng and desserts. The beverage menu includes organic coffee, tea, kombucha, fresh juices and smoothies. Elaborating the philosophy, Chef Saha says, "Some of the best practices at the cafe include farm to fork, use of hyper-local and organic ingredients, non-usage of single plastic and zero waste food operations."

The menu at Santé Spa Cuisine, Indiranagar draws from the philosophies of spa cuisine, which brings together the importance of using natural and seasonal ingredients, free from refinement and processing. Restaurant partner Pallavii Gupta admits, "Food for me is something that engages all my senses. Mindful eating doesn't have to be boring, and if the food isn't appetising, I wouldn't be excited to eat it." Dishes such as pizza, salad, sushi or a chocolate pie on the menu here incorporate superfoods like hemp, quinoa, matcha, charcoal, moringa and a variety of nuts, seeds and berries. International dishes, beautifully presented with local produce, include Spaghetti of farm-grown organic vegetables, Kale Pesto, Watermelon Chutney, Beetroot and Spinach Hummus and a Neem food platter, known for its antibacterial properties.

Vegan Vogue recently opened its doors in Indiranagar, offering a plant-based menu incorporating organic fruits and vegetables while making vegan fun and accessible to everyone. Inspired by global cuisines, here you can savour dishes such as the Agatogo, a modern take on a traditional Rwandan speciality served on a bed of Quinoa rice with seared plantains, roasted pumpkin and kale gravy. Then there is the Butternut Squash Ravioli, Miso Ramen, Smoked Cauliflower Soup, Tofu Guacamole Tacos, Apple Tart and the Caramel Flan. You could pair these with a range of probiotic salads and freshly pressed juices. Restaurant owner Abdul Azeez says, "Vegan food has a reputation of being boring and bland, and we wanted to prove that it can indeed be delicious and fulfilling." A Pure & Sure store on-site is handy, should you wish to stock up on organic products for your home.

With the growing importance of healthy living, Little Italy has recently introduced a vegan and gluten-free menu that focuses on recreating classic Italian dishes with plant-based alternatives. The dishes include Wood Fired Pizzas with vegan Mozzarella, vegan Cheesecake, and vegan Chocolate Mousse. Brik Oven, famous for its original Neapolitan-style pizza, now offers a range of vegan pizzas with vegan Mozzarella, vegan Feta, San Marzano sauce, artichoke, pesto, fig, onion and vegan sour cream. Known for its delicious street food, Street Storyss in Indiranagar also offers a wide selection of vegan dishes such as Textures of Eggplant, Blue Pea Rice with Yellow Tofu Curry, No Bread Watermelon Sandwich and Bangkok Stir Fry.

ARE YOU GAME?
Anusha Ganapathi
@quofles

(This economics graduate spends her leisure time preparing for the zombie apocalypse)

First-Person Shooter games are the cockroaches of video games. The game format is old, they survive without really evolving, and my incompetence with them really gets under my skin. Millions of people continue playing the newest iterations of FPS games. 'Call of Duty: Vanguard' released in the beginning of November. Last week, 'Halo Infinite' released. However, I shall reserve my review of Halo after I have finished the campaign. Battlefield 2042 (BF2042), which released only this week, tried to be a little extra cockroachy — slipping through crevices to release the first game in their series that has no single-player campaigns!

Regardless, BF2042 is a good-looking game, and is worth a shot (hehe). In the league of FPS, Battlefield generally lies at the top of my preference rating. This is mostly because the game is a little more forgiving than other FPSes. BF multiplayer games typically last for a longish time period in comparison to others in this genre. Therefore, as a newb shooter, I get multiple chances to redeem myself. Secondly, there are a lot more players on an average, so the toxic anger gets dissipated across the team: more people take the blame for a loss. The new game, BF2042, retains these essential positive aspects of the game, while adding some new features.

The newest aspect of the game is the removal of classes, and the bringing in of "Specialists". This is just a fancy way of saying that BF2042 rebranded the fighter roles. The medic is now a support specialist. There are now multiple assault, recon and engineer Specialists, with subtle differences in their play styles. Through Specialists, BF2042 is not doing something that other FPSes haven't tried already. Like how Apple brings in new software update that Android has had for a decade, it somehow feels like BF2042 did it better. This is because we can still fly a jet plane and a fighter helicopter, and mow enemies with a tank. It is also because the update is coupled with the humongous new maps in BF2042.

However, the huge maps and the number of players is a double-edged sword. Loading times for online multiplayer is disastrous. Thankfully, playing with the AI was a breeze. I was free to explore the map and weapon attachments, while my computer counterparts did all the work. BF2042 is available on the PSes, Xboxes, and the PC. Cross-play is selectively possible. I rate the game a 2077 out of 2042, because the server wait times aged me.

Cold care

'WINTER is coming', and so are the skin challenges. With the onset of the winter season, we need to give our utmost attention to our skin. This weather attacks the delicate protective layer of the skin leaving it dry, flaky, raw, irritated and itchy. Therefore, the skin needs adequate nourishment so that it can retain moisture better. Low humidity during the cold weather conditions steals moisture from the skin every second of every day. Hence, we need products that can lock in the moisture and nourish our skin to a deeper level.

The knowledge and expertise in cutaneous biology is constantly growing thanks to the latest scientific advances in skin health. Hence our understanding of healthy skin functions, and skin's sensitivity, dysfunctions, regeneration and everyday protection has also come of age.

Cleanser

A daily soothing, purifying cleansing gel that protects the skin from cutaneous dryness is the first basic requirement. The cleanser must sooth sensations of discomfort, irritation and help biologically to strengthen the skin barrier. A cleansing base must respect the skin balance and guarantee excellent tolerance.

Moisturise and repeat

When skin is well moisturised repeatedly, it develops greater resistance, and renewed softness and suppleness right from the first application. The products in one's regimen must be non-comedogenic and unfragranced. The moisturiser when used often creates physically and biologically a healthy skin barrier and helps maintain the skin's water reserve. Vitamins in moisturisers improve the skin's suppleness and restore its comfort durably.

Girish Kulkarni, commercial director, Bioderma- NAOS Skin Care India, says, "For winter skincare, you need products that hydrate your skin and leave it moisturised, soft and supple. It's thus important to opt for non-comedogenic products, have a smooth texture, offer quick absorption and are unfragranced. Using products that re-create a healthy skin barrier and help in maintaining the skin's water reserves is key. Products that have glycerine and mineral fatty substances help correct the lack of skin hydration, by capturing water outside of the body. For instance, our Adoderm creme moisturises the skin and is long-lasting. The skin has greater resistance, and renewed softness and suppleness from the first application. It is non-comedogenic, has a smooth texture, fast absorption and is unfragranced. Also, avoid using a lot of face masks, peels, alcohol-based toners as these will suck all the moisture from your skin, leaving them dry and flaky."

Invest in a Humidifier

When winters arrive, humidity levels in the atmosphere drop drastically. This coupled with sebaceous glands getting sluggish in winters can leave skin dehydrated and sensitive.

Layering

Like clothes, even the skin requires layering. So use serums, humectants, cream and seal it with oil. Serums absorb easily into the skin, especially vitamins enriched ones. Humectants seal in the moisture of the top epidermis layer of the skin. Vitamin-enriched oils like jojoba penetrate deep into the skin.

Masking

Honey is a very good humectant and has excellent moisturising properties. And so is glycerin.

Finally enjoy your hot cuppa chocolate along with your favourite book tucked in a cozy corner of your home. The sight of a lit Christmas tree with the sound of carols, a colourful pair of socks and two feet to dance, and a face glistening due to over application of glycerine is my childhood in short.

Beauty behaviour with a side of dessert

A few weeks ago, I opened my email to see an innocuous forward from my mother. It read something along the lines of, "Trade your full closet for a full life." This seemed like a harmless thread, which I skimmed through and deleted. The email gave me flashbacks of myself at 2am on a Friday. With a full cart, blurry vision, a faint ringing in my ears, and a laptop is starting to age because of the countless open tabs. The timing of this email couldn't have been more accurate.

We've entered into what is the most difficult time of the year for shopaholics, the holidays. These days induce a combination of worry and excitement, which should have us avoiding Black Friday like the Black Plague. There's extreme advertising, triggers carefully knit into words and images. Sales which are designed to give us a "now or never" attitude about purchases, leading to reckless adding to carts, non-stop deliveries and dwindling real estate to store them.

My dear readers, it's time to come clean. My entire life, I've been great at rationalising ridiculous expenses. I can talk myself into buying almost anything at exorbitant prices. I get technical too, with spreadsheets and cash backs, sales, long-term wardrobe goals, and convince myself how buying this one thing right now will save me a lot down the road.

A lot of this changed for me over the last year, and as someone who's working in the beauty industry, I have to say: Beauty brands do not have sales because they like you. Sure, sales are always nice. You get a little rush of adrenaline when that limited edition palette that was on your wish list goes on sale. If you realise how supersaturated the beauty industry is, and how they're essentially competing to grab a spot in your over-jammed beauty budgets, you'll realise that adrenaline is exactly the reaction they are looking for. Brands don't do sales because they are nice, or generous. They go on sales to squeeze out the last segment of their target market who they haven't managed to capture. To break down the restraint of a person who says, "I already have 40 lipsticks, and don't need another."

The formula is the same: create a novel, attention-grabbing product. Get a rush of early adopters paying full-price to rave about it, comfort the doubters with a 10% off later, and continue to aggressively market to those who are waiting it out after. What you think is such a good deal now will likely be replicated again till you're tempted to make the purchase. Sales come every 2 months so keep that in mind if you're getting tricked into buying something because of the FOMO.

A safe way to navigate a sale would be to ask yourself: Would you buy this if it was on full price? Having said that, I'm happy to report that not all of the buying I did the past week was ill-advised. In fact, most of the beauty shopping I did was on my list anyway. I'm not sure if I'll ever completely put compulsive shopping behind me, but small revelations along the way have been helpful. What did you buy this sale season?

Professor and gang bow out in style

BHUVANESH CHANDAR

A series like Money Heist has to bow out in style. There are no two ways about it. The stakes are sky-high, and everybody is glued to their screens to see how the gang-in-red make out of this scintillating bank heist, that has been set up over the last two seasons. The makers have managed to pass through this test, pulling off some surprising feats. That said, though the finale is something that will satisfy most fans, the road to it isn't a perfect one either.

The first volume of the final season ended with Tokyo's (Ursula Corbero) death, and the second volume picks up right from there - showing how Professor (Alvaro Morte) and the team come to terms with the calamity. It's great how even if ample time has passed for us to process and move on from the tragedy, the writing in these scenes, the dialogues especially, pull us right back into the tension that the fifth episode left us with.

Parallelly, in Professor's hideout, Alicia Sierra (played by a brilliant Najwa Nimri) uses this window of opportunity to escape. A car chase ensues, and once again, the writers have used a familiar creative tool to keep up the tension. Just as Alicia races out of the hideout, we cut to a flashback involving Berlin (Pedro Alonso)—a continuation of the subplot from the first volume. When the scene ends, we see the Professor and Marsella (Luka Peros) leaving the hideout to catch Alicia. The juxtaposition of the sequence is intended to psychologically give the feeling that a lot of time has passed since Alicia left. However, we realise that this isn't the case. The chase, juxtaposed with scenes from the bank, keep up the tension.

Now, Tokyo's voiceover begins, but how does a dead character continue to narrate the story? The makers do not explain it through her voiceover. However, there is a scene in which Rio (Miguel Herran) visits the place where Tokyo died, and the voiceover hints at the idea that when a person dies, their spirit lingers on the spot for some time. In fact, it suggests that even Rio can feel her presence. So, maybe one can assume that there is a cosmic reason for the voiceover?

The first three episodes of the second volume move at a hectic pace, focussing on three major narratives: A soldier from the special squad becomes a 'Trojan Horse', the gang has to focus on getting the gold out while Colonel Tamayo and his forces are on high alert, and the third involves the Professor-Alicia situation. Amidst all of this, we also get flashback sequences - however, unlike the ones in the previous seasons, every flashback scene seems too vital to the narrative. This also extends to the scenes that flesh out the interpersonal dynamics between the team members. For example, the scenes involving Manila (Belén Cuesta), Denver (Jaime Lorente), and Monica's (Esther Acebo) do not disturb the narrative given we are well aware that these scenes will lead to the end of their character arcs. Moreover, the second volume continues exploring the mental and emotional make-up of Manila and Monica. The writers also seem to be aware as to when to reel us back to the thick of the action—something that the previous volume failed to do.

Meanwhile, the Berlin plot keeps throwing one revelation after the other, and it already amps up the expectations for the upcoming Berlin spin-off series. In particular, there is a brilliant scene set in a bar when Berlin realises that his son has betrayed him. He loses the cool demeanour that he is popularly known for, and actor Pedro Alonso hits it off the park with his brilliant performance. As expected, the Berlin subplot merges with the main narrative, and it does so in the most astonishing way. This scene happens when Tamayo's squad reaches a place where the team planned to extract the gold. This feels like the final checkmate. Just as you are wondering how things will pan out, we are hurled with one subversion after the other.

MONEY HEIST SEASON 5 VOL 2
Cast: Alvaro Morte, Ursula Corbero, Itziar Ituno, Pedro Alonso
Direction: Alex Pina

The most impressive sequence of the season, however, doesn't involve any of the action. Finally, the makers reveal the original story of the Professor. Though it is unoriginal, these sequences do pull the strings of the heart.

The final episode of the series is, as expected, an out-and-out Professor show. It has some great scenes for the fan-favourite character, but I wish other members of the gang signed off in style as well. There isn't a big action set piece involving bullets raining and grenades flying down the bank's corridor. The twists and turns are gripping, nevertheless. While I can't think of a better way for the show to end, a sense of incompleteness can also be strongly felt. Perhaps, it is the surmounting disappointment of knowing that this is the last time we would have seen the gang sing 'Bella Ciao', or because nothing can satisfy the extraordinary hype that the series has garnered. Or maybe, as Professor says about the gold in the bank: It's just an illusion.

RACHITA RAM PAIRED OPPOSITE YASHAS SURYA IN YOGARAJ BHAT'S GARADI

Rachita Ram

The film will mark Rachita's first collaboration with the actor, director, and producer

A SHARADHAA

RACHITA Ram is set to be part of director Yogaraj Bhat's upcoming film, Garadi. She will be seen alongside lead hero Yashas Surya. The production house and the director made the formal announcement on social media.

Rachita Ram met the actor-filmmaker-politician, BC Patil, and the team at the former's residence on Sunday to discuss the film. "Rachita Ram will be the heroine of Garadi, and she will begin shooting for the film in January," producer Patil told CE.

The film was officially launched on November 14. Billed as a commercial entertainer, Garadi will have Challenging Star Darshan in a prominent role. Producer BC Patil will also be playing an important character in the film. The film's shooting will take place in North Karnataka, Badami, Haihole, and Patadkal.

Rachita Ram is currently shooting for Darshan's Kranti, directed by V Harikrishna.

An arresting exploration of toxic masculinity

AVINASH RAMACHANDRAN

THE POWER OF THE DOG
Cast: Benedict Cumberbatch, Kirsten Dunst, Kodi Smit-McPhee, Jesse Plemons
Direction: Jane Campion

THERE is something beautifully melancholic about the vast expanses of land picturised in Jane Campion's The Power of the Dog. While it is understandable that the arid deserts leave us craving for an oasis of sorts. Even that respite, which comes in the form of an almost Eden-like lush green forest with a babbling brook, only adds to the melancholy. In fact, The Power of the Dog is a film that thrives on being pensive. Every character is in a constant state of internalisation, and never once says what they want to say. Every character is a ticking time bomb, and the anticipation of a breakdown is one of the primary driving factors of Jane's riveting tale of toxic masculinity based on the book of the same name by Thomas Savage.

It is Montana in the 1920s. Brothers Phil Burbank (a sensational Benedict Cumberbatch) and George Burbank (a restrained Jesse Plemons) own a ranch. While Phil is the "man" the society wants him to be, George is the "man" he wants to be. Phil is brash and rude yet smart and resourceful. George is definitely a soft-spoken and kind-hearted man who wants to fit into an evolving world that is leaving behind the cowboys. On the surface, it might seem Phil is the "alpha" among the brothers, as his voice reeks of derision whenever he refers to his younger brother. However, Jane drops enough hints at how within the confines of the Burbank home, Phil is the needier of the brothers. And this neediness is most pronounced when George brings home Rose (a brilliant Kirsten Dunst), and Phil's response is almost like our present-day teenagers reacting to their single parent's new partners. Phil throws a fit because he sees her as a threat, and he then goes out of his way to make Rose an emotional wreck. And this is when we see George isn't really as "evolved" as the world thinks him to be. He is either oblivious to Rose's predicament or looks the other way to avoid conflict with his brother. While we observe Phil's satisfaction in seeing Rose suffer, we don't really see George even remotely feeling bad. The only one who is remotely concerned about her downward spiral is her son Peter (a chillingly effective Kodi Smit-McPhee).

It is through Peter that the carefully constructed world of Phil unravels in front of our eyes. Their worlds are intertwined right from the moment Phil, for a brief moment lets his guard down to admire Peter's paper flowers. This scene has a neat little connection to a cowhide rope made by Phil for Peter in the latter portions of the film. In fact, Jane's writing is filled with such smart callbacks that a film that entirely stays in the dysfunctional family drama genre seamlessly steps into thriller territory as the credits roll.

Earlier, in Westerns, we often saw the good, bad, and ugly of machismo being elevated as aspirational traits. But with evolving filmmakers and cinema, we are seeing the notions of masculinity being put under the microscope. These films lead to introspection of sorts. In The Power of the Dog, the more we are acquainted with the world of Phil and Peter, the more our ideas about them and the exhibition of masculinity are deconstructed. We are aided in this process through Jane's vision and Ari Wegner's compelling cinematography. Take, for instance, the scene where Phil is pleasuring himself near a stream. Or the scenes where the nude cowboys are frolicking in a river. The gaze, the angles, the camera movement is refreshing, and expertly navigate the thin line between aesthetic and voyeurism. And the gloves come off in a bull castration scene where the makers paint a grim picture of what it takes for a guy like Phil to stand out as an alpha among his peers. This sequence is raw and grotesque but it is impossible to take our eyes away from what's unfolding because of a towering performance from Benedict Cumberbatch.

RATING 4/5

Be it his wistful reminiscence of the times he spent with his mentor Bronco Henry, his act of defiance against the rules laid by his parents, his inability to come to terms with the separation from his brother, the moments he spends with his lonesome self, him realising his first streak of happiness in years together, Benedict Cumberbatch delivers one of his finest performances to date. In fact, The Power of the Dog is powered by some of the best performances of its leads. While Benedict's froth-in-the-mouth angry outbursts are gripping, it is his vulnerability that adds layers to a role that might seem overly one-note at first glance. The same holds good for Kodi Smit-McPhee's Peter. Despite being ridiculed for his artistic sensibilities and lack of "manly" attributes, the evolution of Peter, and his subsequent relationship with Phil sets the tone for the film. While Rose isn't saddled with a lot of dialogues, her character arc that begins as a defiant mom and almost ends up as a cowering woman of the ranch with a sincere hope at redemption might have been less effective in the hands of a lesser actor. Kirsten's eyes, her furtive glances, her timid responses, her staggering body language, and the half-smiles paint Rose as the perfectly conflicted character she is. Kirsten delivers a masterclass in restraint.

Another masterclass in The Power of the Dog is the music by Jonny Greenwood. The piece when Rose realises she can one-up Phil. The tune when Phil finds Peter to be the companion he so craved. The music when we see Phil finally being himself. If Ari anchors Jane's vision, Jonny mounts it in the grandest of scales and makes T*he Power of the Dog* an epic but wonderfully understated film that explores an all-important question -- What does it mean to be a man in a man's world?

Brad Pitt to headline an F1 racing film

CE FEATURES

BRAD Pitt is set to star as the lead in a film based on Formula One racing. The film will be directed by Joseph Kosinski, who is also behind the yet-to-be-released Tom Cruise actioner Top Gun: Maverick.

While the story of the film is currently under tight wraps, reports suggest that screenwriter Ehren Kruger, who has also collaborated with Kosinski on Top Gun: Maverick, is on board to pen the script. Jerry Bruckheimer, the producer behind blockbuster franchises such as Pirates of the Caribbean and National Treasure, will be serving as the producer on the untitled project.

According to reports, major studios such as MGM, Sony, Universal, Disney, Netflix, Apple, and Amazon are competing to acquire distribution rights of the film.

On the other hand, Pitt has The Lost City, Bullet Train, and Babylon.

Dhananjay: Badava Rascal is a common man's film

CE FEATURES

BADAVA Rascal will be actor Dhananjay's first production venture under Daali Pictures. The film, which marks the debut of director Shankar Guru, is slated to release on December 24, and the trailer of the film will be unveiled on December 9.

Ahead of its release, the makers have come up with creative ways to promote the film. The film's release date was unveiled by coconut vendors, provision store owners, and vegetable sellers on their letter boards. The interesting one was a doctor's prescription bearing the film's release date.

The unique idea seems to have impressed Dhananjay. He says that anything and everything about Badava Rascal has been the result of teamwork. "It was my co-actor and friend, Naga bhushan, who suggested Badava Rascal as the title. We managed to acquire the title from director Yogaraj Bhat. Using people to announce the release date was the idea of my assistant make-up artist, Ganesh. I shared the stills on my social platforms which were well received by the people. A tea stall owner has a tea named after Badava Rascal. It is overwhelming to see fans taking this initiative to promote the film," he says.

The film is certified with a U/A, and according to Dhananjay, Badava Rascal is a common man's film. "It is a middle-class family entertainer and will cater to all kinds of audiences."

Badava Rascal has Amrutha Iyengar playing the female lead and also stars Nagabhushan, Poornachandra Mysuru, Tara, and Rangayana Raghu in pivotal roles. The film has music by Vasuki Vaibhav and cinematography by Preetha Jayaram.

Dhananjay will also be seen in the Telugu film, Pushpa, starring Allu Arjun, which is set to hit the theatres on December 17. The actor is also part of Head Bush and will start shooting for the film after the release of Badava Rascal.
